JAPANESE NAVAL ULTIMATUM

ONLY JAPANESE SHIPS TO USE PEARL RIVER

SHANGHAI, YESTERDAY.

ALL BRITISH SHIPS HAVE BEEN GIVEN A 16-HOUR ULTIMATUM TO REMOVE FROM THE YANGTSE IN THE NEIGHBOURHOOD OF HANKOW BY MIDNIGHT TO-NIGHT, WHEN THE JAPANESE ANNOUNCE THEIR INTENTION TO BOMB THE CITY RELENTLESSLY.

The Yangtse withdrawal ultimatum, made in the form of a memorandum to the foreign consuls, affects all foreign ships.

FOREIGN POWERS ARE ALSO REQUESTED TO MOVE THEIR VESSELS IN THE PEARL RIVER EITHER TO THE OPEN SEA OR TO THE UPPER REACHES FAR REMOVED FROM CANTON.

Reason for this demand is stated to be that the whole region will become a zone of fighting from to-day.

It is added that when the Pearl River is opened, it will be reserved for ships assisting the Japanese military operations until it is considered that use of the passage to other ships "no longer interferes with our military operations."

Intense Fighting From To-Day Excuse

Full text of the memorandum, on South China, which was transmitted from Mr. Masayuki Tani, Japanese Minister Plenipotentiary, to the foreign consuls, is as follows:

1. The whole region traversed by the Pearl River is becoming a zone of intense fighting from to-day as a result of the irresistible march of the Japanese forces upon Canton.

Third powers whose naval vessels and merchantmen are now located on the Pearl River or on waters adjacent thereto, are hereby requested to take steps to have such ships take refuge in the open sea or the upper reaches of the Pearl River far removed from Canton.

2. It is hoped that the third powers concerned will inform the Japanese naval authorities as soon as possible of the location and movements of their naval vessels and merchantmen on the Pearl River and adjacent waters.

It is further requested that such ships and merchantmen on the Pearl River and adjacent waters be clearly marked so as to render them easily distinguishable by our air and land forces.

3. Upon capture of the boom, which the Chinese have constructed across the Pearl River, the Japanese naval forces will open through the said boom the passage necessary for our military operations.

We trust it may be understood that this passage, as in the case of the Matung boom on the Yangtse, cannot be made available to any ships other than those serving the military needs of the Japanese forces, until such time as the commander-in-chief of the Japanese fleet considers that use of this passage by other ships no longer interferes with our military operations.

4. The above requests being actuated by the earnest desire of the commander-in-chief of the Japanese fleet to avoid the occurrence of any unpleasant incident involving a third power, it is hoped that all third powers concerned will give us their sincere co-operation towards attainment of the end envisaged.

OUT OF HANKOW BY MIDNIGHT

The memorandum dealing with the Yangtse raid is as follows:

1. In view of the fact that Chinese troops are now crossing the Yangtse River in large numbers in the vicinity of Hankow, it is anticipated that it may become necessary for our forces to carry out bombing operations.

These operations may even be carried out during the night, and in order to avoid the occurrence of mutually regrettable questions that might arise from any unforeseen damage being suffered by neutral naval vessels and merchantmen present in that neighbourhood, we beg to request the authorities of third powers concerned to warn all their respective ships now in the vicinity of Hankow to find anchorage at a point about ten nautical miles upstream from Hankow by midnight to-day (Saturday).

2. All third power authorities are hereby requested to inform the Japanese naval authorities as to the names of all their vessels that will be proceeding up-river.

Authentic information made available to the "Sunday Herald" last night discredited reports circulated yesterday that the Japanese Navy had broken through the Pearl River boom and that troop transports were proceeding up-river.

Two Battle Cruisers Reported In Pearl River Delta

It is true that a veritable armada is now in the Delta.

Included in the assemblage are two battle-cruisers!

These two giant warships, described as about the size of the Renown by an eye-witness of their passage into the Delta, skirting the waters of the Colony, were accompanied by four minesweepers and are apparently to be used to reduce the Bocca Tigris Forts. One was flying the flag of Rear-Admiral.

They were seen proceeding open.

Later in the day, seven transports, each of about 7,000 tons, escorted by destroyers, were seen passing the same spot, crowded with troops. It was estimated that at least 15,000 men were aboard.

The scale of the incursion is taken to indicate that the Japanese naval command anticipates that Bocca Tigris may constitute a serious obstacle to an attempt to force the river open.

A statement on various British grievances against Japan was made to-day by General Hata, the Japanese commander-in-chief, to Reuter in an interview at the Central China Army Headquarters in Nanking.

General Hata declared: "All measures being taken by our forces at the present time were adopted because of military necessity."

"I believe that their revision will be considered as soon as relaxation of conditions takes place," he added.

The City of Nanking surrendered to the Japanese invader with scarcely a shot fired. So great is the dismay in Chinese circles, that many still refuse to believe the story of the disaster.

JAPANESE MARCH INTO CANTON
Resistance Offered During Morning In Eastern Area

OFFICER DRIVES UP TO SHAMEEN GATES

HUSH-HUSH LEADER REVEALED

Canton, Yesterday. Although there was considerable firing in Canton this morning, the actual occupation by the main Japanese forces this afternoon took place without a shot being fired.

The Japanese marched in with perfect discipline, and looting was practically non-existent. First indication to foreigners on Shamen that the occupation was a fact was the appearance on the Shambu Bund, opposite the British Bridge, of a Japanese officer.

The officer, who was in command of the advance detachment, drove up to the Shamen gates and held a conversation with the British authorities.

Japanese infantry began to follow the tanks into the downtown sections of Canton at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and ten minutes later the first Japanese soldier appeared opposite Shamen, indicating that occupation had been virtually completed.

CLASHES IN EAST

From daybreak until noon sporadic rifle and machine-gun fire was audible on Shamen, coming from the east sections of the city, where the Japanese flying column had penetrated into Canton on Friday.

The Japanese were evidently making sure of ridding buildings of Chinese stragglers before the main sections of the Japanese

Tokyo, Yesterday. The mystery over the commander of the Japanese expeditionary forces in South China was cleared up to-day, when a communiqué issued by Imperial Headquarters revealed the name of the "hush-hush" leader of the troops who captured Canton. He is Lt.-Gen. Mikio Furusho, commander of the Formosa garrison.

The communiqué also reveals that Lt.-Col. Prince Chichibu, younger brother of the Emperor, participated in the operations as a member of the Supreme Commander's Staff.—Reuter.

American Plane Set On Fire By Jap. Celebrations

Shanghai, Yesterday.

A spectacular fireworks display over Pootung in celebration of the capture of Canton, ended abruptly at about 8 o'clock this evening after a United States naval seaplane on board the flagship "Augusta" caught fire from falling sparks.

The Japanese Consul-General, Mr. Hirada, immediately called on the American Consul-General, Mr. Clarence E. Gauss, expressing regrets, while Japanese navy officers made a similar visit to the "Augusta."

The display of skyrockets began at about 5 o'clock with loud explorations drawing crowds to the Settlement Bund. The explosions were heard throughout Shanghai, and gave rise to rumours that Japanese artillery was firing and planes bombing.

WAR REMINDER

The display was reminiscent of wartime anti-aircraft barrages from Japanese vessels in the harbour a year ago.

Shortly before 8 o'clock a spark fell on the wing of one of the four planes on the deck of the "Augusta," anchored in the Whangpoo.

The blaze was quickly put out by sailors as a searchlight from the fighting tower played on the plane.

To-day Japanese school children paraded in Hongkew streets with flags and bunting, while above the Japanese Consulate-General a balloon carried a sign announcing the entry into Canton.—Reuter.

GEN. HATA ON BRITAIN'S GRIEVANCES

Nanking, Yesterday.

A statement on various British grievances against Japan was made to-day by General Hata, the Japanese commander-in-chief, to Reuter in an interview at the Central China Army Headquarters in Nanking.

General Hata declared: "All measures being taken by our forces at the present time were adopted because of military necessity."

"I believe that their revision will be considered as soon as relaxation of conditions takes place," he added.

MAUD DAWSON'S GOSSIP Picking up the Threads

FTER a period of war and alarms, we settle down, albeit with an uneasy conscience, to the jobs of a workaday world.

Throughout a bitterly anxious and humiliating time more than one woman, particularly if she has children, has learned that politics are HER affair, just as much as, and in fact part and parcel of, her children's future and her household bills.

Let me thank correspondents for the vital and sympathetic letters regarding "Women in Revolt." I will answer as many as possible in due course, and regret that lack of space forbids me dealing with them here.

In the meantime, life has to go on, dinners to be cooked, wardrobes replenished, and many mothers are finding it a little difficult to restore home discipline to its customary smooth running.

Talking of cooking, events of the past few weeks have turned thoughts again to canned foods, which most people think of
as a modern invention.

Actually we have to thank National for promoting the original idea—I doubt whether his would-be prototypes of modern times will leave even this much of usefulness behind them.

He offered a prize of 12,000 francs to the man who could find a means of preserving food for his armies. Prizes were won by a Paris confectioner, Nicholas Appert, who devised a rough-and-ready method of preserving food in glass.

Curiously enough, it has been until the last 10 years that canning has really developed and been raised from the ignominious position of the bad cook's way out to the strength and stay of the good cook.

In 1930 there were 50 can-neries packing food in this country.
Now there are over 200, and they are busy marketing 350 different varieties of foodstuffs.

A big section of the forthcoming Women's Fair and Exhibition at Olympia, London, will be devoted to this development.

This week, too, there has come into my hands one of the most intriguing little cookery books
I have seen for some time, produced by Nestle's, "Magic in the Kitchen," with sweetened condensed milk the basis of its recipes.

One of the chief delights of the book is the exquisite coloured plates which accompany all the recipes, in themselves sufficient to stimulate the weary imagination.

Here are two of the recipes.

First is for Magic Coconut Strips.

Trim off the crust of a stale loaf and cut the bread into strips $\frac{1}{4}$ in. by 2 in. Spread on all sides and ends with Nestle's Milk, then roll in shredded coconut. Brown under a low grill, and serve quickly.

Second recipe is the world's simplest. You place one tin of Nestle's Milk in a saucepan of boiling water and keep it at boiling point for three hours, taking care that the tin is covered with water throughout. Remove from the tin and you have caramel pudding, ready to be sliced with a knife dipped in hot water and garnished with cream, fruit or nuts.

Illustrations above are for the girl who wants to give new life to last year's frock, particularly if the frock is simply and plainly cut.

You simply get a few yards of chiffon or georgette, a few camellias or gardenias and arrange as illustrated, with the flowers forming necklace or waist ornament and the ends of the scarf providing a delightful flowing drapery.

Another way, particularly if you are inclined to be too thin about the shoulders, is to drape the chiffon across the chest without flowers, gathering on either shoulder and fastening with a jewelled clip, the ends forming a drapery in the same way as before.

If you wear the flowers at waist or neck, a charming idea is to repeat the floral note in your hair, embroidered on your bag or handkerchief.

These draperies do not detract from the line of the frock and lend grace and dignity to all except the very short woman.
Many evening frocks at this season's dress shows relied for much of their charm upon some such arrangement of draperies.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

CANVAS chairs which have faded can be tinted successfully with cold water dye.
Apply with an old toothbrush, and give two applications.

TO shell walnuts without breaking the kernels, place the nuts in a dish, and cover with boiling water. Then cover the dish and stand for half an hour.

TO prevent cheese from becoming mouldy, wrap it in a piece of thin muslin, wrung out in vinegar. As the cloth dries, moisten it again.

IF there have been stains upon your carpet which when removed have left dull marks, try rubbing them over with vinegar on a clean cloth. The colours in your carpet will shine brightly once more.

"Council Of State And National Unity Urgently Necessary"

British Policy After The World Crisis

EUROPE has been through a period of deep emotional stress. To universal horror at impending war has succeeded universal relief that at least a respite has been won. As the relief recedes, in its turn anxiety for the future grows, and with it a determination to avert a repetition of the cruel choice of evils of recent weeks. That choice has indeed been hateful to the British government and nation alike, and so it is an ever-increasing pressure that all these changes have in fact ready begun to consider the new future that it must now face by force. Wrap it up as we will, that remora of the events of the past weeks.

This is all to the good. For while there is an overwhelming cause for relief and thankfulness, there is none for jubilation, still puer, never to resort to the use of force in the settlement of international disputes. What rule is left in Europe now, save the rule of force? International standards are lowered.

Against these grim realities we can set one substantial gain; that the people of Europe have shown immediate calamity, and placed themselves unmistakably, even civilisation under an enduring passionately, eager for peace. However confident we may have been of the truth of this, the cheers that greeted the British Prime Minister in Germany are an unmistakable confirmation. The German people welcomed him, and rightly so, as the man who had spared himself no effort in that last bid to avert war.

Great National Effort

In the light of this reflection, it is to the future that we must turn our minds. No one pretends that we are out of the wood; many fear that we are much further into it. Which ever view be taken, there is a widespread desire that the greatest national effort should be made to ensure that England is never placed in a like position again.

On this country is virtually united, and there is also a very real willingness among large sections of the public to contribute anything in their power to increasing the sense of national security. This in turn finds expression in a widespread demand that the pace of British rearmament should be speeded up, and applies in particular to air armaments, and anti-aircraft defence in all its aspects.

Organisation On Civil Side

Many also hold the conviction that there should be some organisation on the civil side, whether by means of a form of national service, or other organisation, which would enable Great Britain to meet any future crisis that might arise infinitely better organised in this respect than it was some weeks ago. To achieve these results, some measure of sacrifice from everyone will be necessary, but the British people in the past have never been unwilling to face that sacrifice, if the reality of the need is made plain to them.

Again there are many who feel that it is a national duty at this time to reduce party polemics to a minimum, and are convinced that if the democracies are to survive, they must show a vigour and an enthusiasm comparable with that which other forms of government have been able to inspire.

Parliamentary Controversy

The two subjects which to-day are foremost in the English public mind are foreign policy and defence. It would clearly be an inestimable gain were the English able to achieve some measure of agreement upon these issues. Is this impossible? The difficulties are obvious and formidable, but not, I believe, insuperable. At least an effort should be made, however doubtful some may regard the chances of success. There are, of course, differences of outlook, differences of method, differences of emphasis, and these even cut across the ordinary party divisions.

National Unity

Of course it is easy to reply that to plead for such things is to aim at the unattainable, yet there is no one who would hesitate to advocate such a course had war once broken out. It seems not unreasonable to plead that an effort to secure national unity to avert war is as justifiable an a like effort to win it. Nor can there be any doubt that conditions are sufficiently serious to justify taking exceptional measures with the least possible delay.

The changes wrought in the European situation as the outcome of the Munich Conference are grave and far-reaching, and the sooner they are realised the better. British and French influence has been replaced by that of Germany throughout Central and South Eastern Europe, and one cannot yet foresee how far this may extend. In any event, it must have a serious effect on the British trade position, already injured by hostilities in the Far East. The English people will be forced to take very serious stock of their general commercial position in the world, and to take measures to secure those markets which are most essential to them.

When we turn to the practical means of achieving this unity on foreign affairs, with which in present world conditions all the English home problems are so intimately connected, it is clear that the most direct solution would be the formation of a government composed of representatives of all parties, such as would inevitably arise in time of war. It is probably not possible to achieve this now, but could not the objective be approached by stages? The first of these might be the fuller and more frequent exchange of information between the government and the

This is equally true as regards leaders of the other parties, and defence. It is dangerous to ignore the extension of this practice, if unpleasant possibilities, and no possible to some examination and discussion of the views held by one can deny that it is now unhappily a possibility that in a future conflict Great Britain and France may have to rely entirely on each other. The late Mr. Ramsay MacDonald once appealed that parliament upon their own strength. That should constitute a council of strength, if fully organised and state. It is infinitely more desirable, is still immensely for able to realise such a construction. The danger is that, having once been turned, this perilous question of muzzling discuss corner, they may be encouraged to do so again. There can be, of course, once turned, this perilous question of muzzling discuss corner, they may be encouraged to do so again. There can be, of course, once turned, this perilous question of muzzling discuss corner, they may be encouraged to do so again. The knowledge in all parts of the can continue to follow the House that the government's hazard methods of the past, allowing whatever its character, had no disturbance of the daily been taken in fulfilment of a for-civil routine and hoping always sign policy on which the nation that the experiences of the last was united, its whole character weeks have been a nightmare that cannot return.

KEMAL ATATURK RALLYING

Ankara, Yesterday.
A bulletin issued last night by the physician attending President Kemal Ataturk declares: "The marked improvement in the general condition which began during the day, continues. Pulse very regular, with 80 beats, respiration 20, temperature 36.9." The bulletin, moreover, announces that in view of the considerable improvement in the President's condition, only one daily bulletin will be issued from now on instead of two as hitherto.—Trans-Ocean.

SURPRISE VISIT TO ENGLAND OF DR. BENES

London, Yesterday.
The Czechoslovak Minister in London, M. Jan Masaryk, commenting on the visit to England of the former President, Dr. Benes, says it is of a purely private nature. From Croydon airport Dr. Benes drove directly by car to the country seat of personal friends where he will stay. M. Masaryk stressed that the former President's health is unsatisfactory and that he desired complete seclusion during his visit.—Trans-Ocean.

BRITISH WAR PRISONERS FREED

Barcelona, Yesterday.
One hundred British prisoners of war will be released to-day by the Franco Government. They are expected to return to England immediately.

The prisoners will be exchanged for a similar number of Italian troops held by the Government.—Reuter.

HANKOW MAY HOLD OUT FOR A MONTH

Formidable Booms Still To Be Overcome

YU HAN-MOU
... What? ... When? ... Why?

Hankow, Yesterday.
Although there is no official information regarding the situation at Hwangshihkang, about 75 miles down river from Hankow, it is generally believed that the town has fallen into the hands of the Japanese. It is pointed out, however, that other and still more formidable booms and several mine-fields have to be overcome before Hankow is reached.

General Lo Chua-ying, told a Chinese correspondent to-day that he considered it will be at least another month before the battle is brought to Hankow's doorstep.

An official communiqué states that a small Japanese unit effected a landing at Ocheng, 15 miles north-west of Hwangshihkang, but were swiftly repulsed. The situation on the various fronts around Hankow, it is stated, shows no important change.

The Japanese division apparently heading for Sienning, situated on the Canton-Hankow Railway, is meeting with strong resistance from the Chinese troops east of Tungshan, fully twenty miles south-east of Sienning.—Reuter.

OCHENG CLAIM
Shanghai, Yesterday.
The Japanese naval landing party forces claim to have completed occupation of Ocheng, the Chinese stronghold on the south bank of the Yangtse, north-west of Hwangshihkang and about 35 miles east of Hankow, at 12.30 to-day.

This is according to an official communiqué released by the Japanese China Seas Fleet Command.—Reuter.

Royal SCOTS ATTACKED
Jerusalem, Yesterday.
A detachment of the Royal Scots was attacked near Nablus when in an exchange of shots, one British soldier was killed and two wounded.

Numerous casualties were inflicted on the Arab raiders.—Reuter.

R.A.F. GOES TO ASSIST

Jerusalem, Yesterday.
R.A.F. planes went to the assistance of ground troops on two occasions in an encounter with Arab rebels north-west of Nablus to-day.

Four machines flew to the rescue when a ration convoy of the First Border Regiment, escorted by a detachment of Royal Scots, was ambushed.

Meanwhile the 11th Hussars and armoured cars, who were also speeding to the scene of the ambush, were heavily fired upon by armed bands en route.

Again planes went to the rescue, routing the band with losses.

Eventually another column of Royal Scots reached the ration convoy and dispersed the attackers, capturing rifles and ammunition.

The rebels suffered fifteen casualties.—Reuter.

CZECH-BUDAPEST NEGOTIATIONS

Prague, Yesterday.
The Government in a Cabinet meeting discussed the course to take in the forthcoming negotiations with Hungary.

No final decision was made because it was considered necessary to wait for a definition of viewpoint of the neighbouring countries and the Little Entente states.

Special difficulties are expected to arise from the Carpathian question.—Trans-Ocean.

TALKS RESUMING Uzhord, Yesterday.

The negotiations between Hungary, Slovakia and Ruthenia, broken off some days ago in Komorn, will be continued at the beginning of next week, it is reported from a reliable source.

It is generally expected that the three powers will meet in Vienna because negotiations should be easier if on neutral soil.—Trans-Ocean.

More than 100 bombs, including incendiary missiles, were dropped at each place, reducing buildings to a shambles. Several big fires were started.

Thirty civilians in Liuchiamiao were killed and 50 badly wounded. A whole row of houses behind the railway station collapsed like a pack of cards.

The new platform at the Hsueh-chia-pang station was destroyed. A large number of refugees waiting for trains to evacuate from Hankow were blasted to death. Bodily torn and mangled bodies littered the station and the railway track.

One of the invading machines, flying daringly low, swept the foreign race course and its vicinity with machine-gun fire.

The first squadron of nine machines appeared at 9.55 a.m., and passed over the French Concession and the Special Districts along the Bund on its way to Wu-chang. This was the first time a Japanese plane had flown over the foreign areas in Hankow.

CHIANG LEAVES HANKOW

Shanghai, Yesterday.
It is authoritatively confirmed that General and Madame Chiang Kai-shek left Hankow last night.

The Wuhan garrison commander, General Cheng Chen, and all other high personages, also left.

An obscure soldier by the name of Kuo Chang has been left in command of Hankow.—Reuter.

GERMAN CURRENCY RUMOUR DENIED

BERLIN, YESTERDAY.
RUMOURS CIRCULATED IN FOREIGN PAPERS OF THE FORTHCOMING DEVALUATION OF THE GERMAN CURRENCY, ARE FLATLY DENIED IN OFFICIAL QUARTERS HERE.

It is recalled that the German Government has repeatedly declared its fundamental aversion to any currency manipulation.

It is also stressed that the journey of the Reich Minister of Economy, Dr. Funk, to south-east Europe and Turkey, as well as the credits granted to Poland, clearly demonstrates the German Government's intention to adhere to this policy.

It is emphasised that the stability of the German currency is unquestionable.—Trans-Ocean.

CLAIM TO KISHUI

Hankow, Yesterday.
Japanese claims to have captured Kishui, on the north bank of the Yangtse, and Tayeh, on the south bank, are denied by the Chinese authorities.

The town of Tayeh, it is stated, stretches over a wide area, and as far as can be ascertained, fighting is proceeding on the outskirts, with extremely heavy casualties being sustained on either side.

The actual town, Chinese reports claim, is still in Chinese hands.—Reuter.

PATHETIC EVACUATION SCENES

London, Yesterday.
The Air Ministry announces the conclusion with Vickers Armstrong of arrangements for creation with the aid of their whole organisation, of a widespread sub-contracting system to be employed on the manufacture of aircraft.

This system will feed component parts for final assembly into a new central factory to be controlled by Vickers.

The necessary sub-contracts are already being placed in connection with a large initial order, while active measures are in train for provision of the central factory.—Reuter.

SOVIET AIRMAN'S DEATH

Moscow, Yesterday.
The death is announced of the well-known military aviator, Major Brändske, who is stated to have perished, victim of a tragedy in fulfilment of his duties.

No information as to the nature of the tragedy is forthcoming.

Decedent had earned fame by his non-stop flight from Moscow to Vladivostok in the summer of 1938.—Trans-Ocean.

AUSTRALIAN LOAN

Canberra, Yesterday.
The Australian Loan Council has authorised a Defence Loan of £4,000,000 and conversion loans amounting to £68,000,000.

Each loan carries interest at 3-7/8 per cent, and is redeemable in fourteen to sixteen years.—Reuter.

Japanese bombers bombarded the Chinese lines of retreat in the north of the city.

It is said that the Japanese airmen dropped bombs on all lines of approach and retreat within the circumference of the Chinese fronts.

Evacuation of Hankow was almost complete to-day, and the town of Wuchang, on the south bank of the Yangtse opposite Hankow, was quite evacuated.—Trans-Ocean.

CHINA PEACE FEELER

British Attitude Blamed In Some Circles
For South China
Debacle

WANG CHING-WEI DECLINES TO ASSENT

Chungking, Yesterday.

In putting out what appeared to be a peace feeler during an exclusive interview with Reuter yesterday, Mr. Wang Ching-wei, Deputy Chairman of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee, also discussed Sino-British relations.

Mr. Wang Ching-wei declared:

"Some sections of Chinese opinion said that Japan had seen that Britain was not prepared to fight, and so invaded South China, and that it is for that reason that the British attitude is much to be blamed in their eyes."

"On the other hand, if Britain is prepared to fight, and a European war breaks out, the situation will be just as bad for China, as Japan might then maintain neutrality and concentrate on conquering China."

"During his recent speech on Japanese war, Mr. Wang said: 'If Japan offers peace terms which are not such to hamper the existence of the Chinese nation, we may accept them as a basis for discussion, but otherwise there is no room for mediation.'

DEFENDS ON TERMS

He added: "All depends on the terms offered. We were forced to resort to arms. We did not instigate the present hostilities and we are willing to have peace, but only on terms that do not menace our independence."

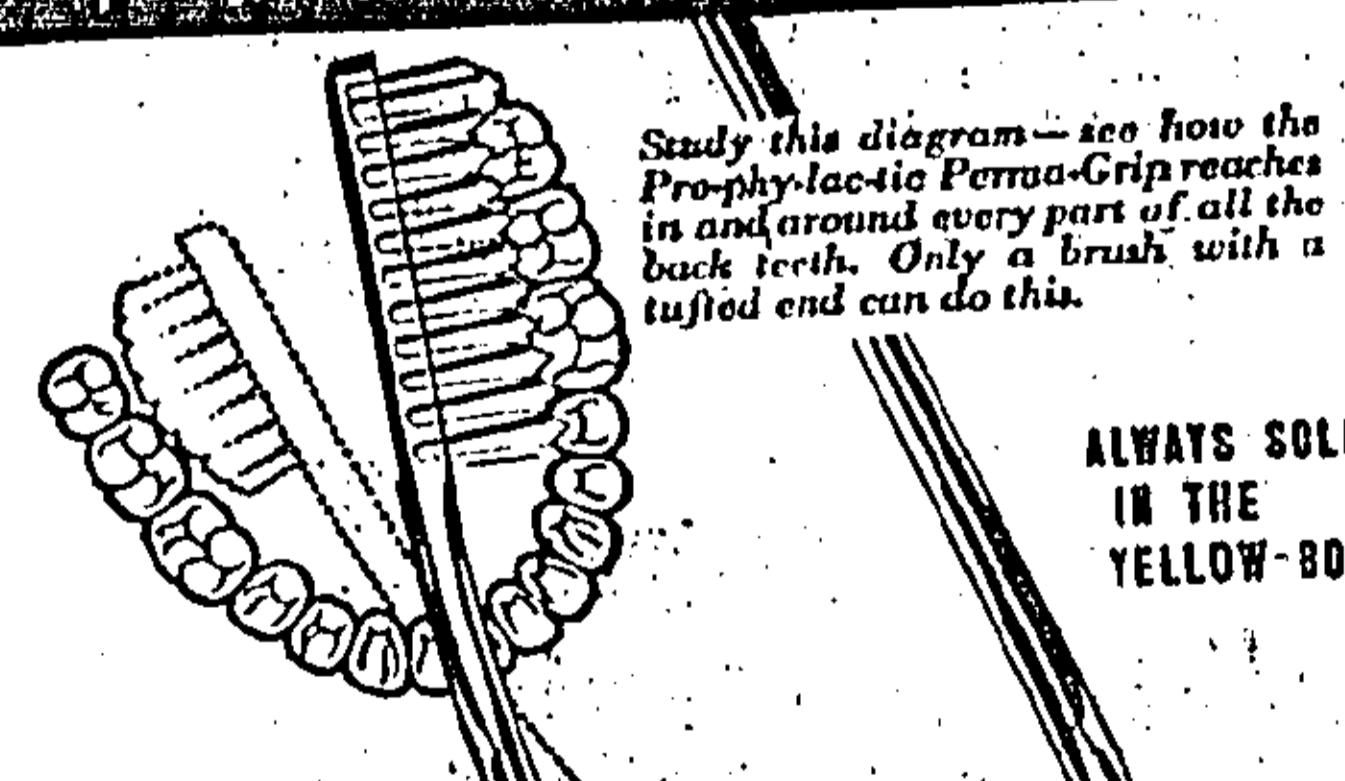

"As far as China is concerned we have never closed the door to mediation. At the Brussels Conference we did not refuse to accept mediation. Again last year when the German Government offered its good services we did not refuse, and recently when the League discussed application of Article XVII of the Covenant, we will maintain international order and justice."

"I personally still have confidence in Britain that she will give equitable help to China and will maintain international order and justice."

Turning to the possibility of peace talks to end the Sino-

NEW CZECH PROPOSALS TO BUDAPEST

Budapest, Yesterday.
What is claimed to be the gist of the new Czech proposals for a settlement of the frontier dispute with Hungary is published here.

The entire grain-growing region between Pressburg and Komorn is to be made over to Hungary together with the Slovak zone stretching from Nauhaeu to Rosennau and the section of the Ruthenia frontier region inclusive of the town of Saechisch Bereg.

The Czech proposal also contains a certain suggestion for safeguarding of the rights of the remnant of the Hungarian minority in Czechoslovakia.

The commentary is here to the effect that if the above information is in keeping with the facts the new Czech proposals must be again rejected by Hungary as unacceptable. —Trans-Ocean.

SLOVAKS IN HUNGARY ADD THEIR VOICE

Budapest, Yesterday.
A new voice added to the Hungarian-Czechoslovak minority controversy is that of the Slovak National Council of this city—the authorized dental representative body of 300,000 Slovaks living in Hungary—which issued the following proclamations on Friday evening:

"We herewith announce to the world that we lead the life of slaves in Hungary. We demand our national rights on the same basis as the Hungarians in Czechoslovakia demand theirs. We demand that we be accorded the right of national self-determination."

ITALIAN CONSULAR AGENTS HELD

KING CAROL REJECTS POLISH BRIBE

Bucharest, Yesterday.
That King Carol rejected the Polish proposals regarding partitioning of Carpathian Ruthenia is confirmed by the Rumanian press.

In a leading article, the Government paper says that the Czech-Rumanian frontier will be maintained, this being the wish of 50,000 Rumanians living in Slovakia.

Rumania is interested in having Czechoslovakia for neighbour for strategical reasons, it is declared and a common Polish-Hungarian frontier would interfere with Rumanian economic life by cutting off Czechoslovakia's markets.

Rumania is satisfied with her present frontiers. She is neither willing to cede any of her territory nor does she demand such a sacrifice from other States.

"In fact," writes the paper with an obvious reference to the offer made by Colonel Beck, "Rumania will refuse territory offered to her." —Trans-Ocean.

Far East Russia To Be Split Up

Moscow, Yesterday.
The Soviet Ambassador to the United States, M. Troyanovsky, will not return to Washington, it is reliably learned here. He is expected to be appointed Vice-Commissar at the Soviet Foreign Office.

Partition of the Soviet Far Eastern Province into two provinces is officially announced here.

The new "Coastal Province" includes territory on the Pacific Coast from the mouth of the Ussuri River to the mouth of the Amur River.

The new "Chabarovsky Province" includes Kamchatka, Sakhalin and Amur districts and the Jewish Autonomous Republic of Birobidzhan.

Partition of the large Far Eastern Province is believed to be connected with the fall of Marshal Blucher. Administrative partition was preceded by division of the special Far Eastern Army into two separate armies. —Trans-Ocean.

ADDITIONAL PAYMENTS TO UNEMPLOYED

London, Yesterday.

From November 14 till the middle of next April the Unemployment Assistance Board, in conformity with the policy inaugurated last winter, will pay additional discretionary winter allowances to those unemployed who on review of their class are found to need them—particularly applicants living in households where resources consist mainly of unemployment allowances. —British Wireless.

My Tenth Pipeful since breakfast

Old enough to know better, eh? Old enough to know best when it comes to smoking! I've smoked Afrikander ever since I got over the stage—many years ago—of trying every brand on the market.

Just a word to you fellows who have yet to find your last love—profit by my experience—buy Afrikander. And your search for pipe contentment is over. Afrikander lasts for a long time, it has a satisfying flavour that you can get your tongue round and taste. Mild enough never to parch your throat—strong enough to satisfy everybody—and cool as a snowball. Try it. You'll like it. An you'll discover too, why it is smoked more than any other Empire tobacco. And it costs only 40 cts. an ounce.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO POLICE RESERVIST

A nasty motor accident occurred shortly after 5 p.m. yesterday as a result of which Sub-Inspector Choy Hing-kee, of the Police Reserve, suffered a complicated leg fracture which necessitated an immediate operation on his admission to the Queen Mary Hospital.

Choy, who is employed at Messrs. Dayle Borg and Co., Ltd., was riding a motor cycle along Hennessy Road when a lorry No. 2534 approaching from the opposite direction suddenly turned northwards to enter Percival Street and in so doing struck the cycle and threw its rider.

Small quantities of fresh vegetables are now being supplied by growers in the New Territories and from Macau.

There, however, appears to be no shortage of rice, on which the Chinese population mainly depend for their daily meals.

The influx of refugees is said to account for the slight increase in rice costs.

Hookvurm

"A LEETLE man with a blonde head an' nice manners," hunked the Voice. "He go to Peninsula."

We went to the Peninsula—asked two small, fair men. The first, in vivo, was incapable of a straight answer; the second yawned: "Heide? No can do—She knows I'm here." After this we let the matter drop for a week.

Later, when we met him by appointment, at a friend's house, we discovered that the Voice (his wife's) had described Doctor Heide pretty accurately. Short, fair-complexioned, the Doctor has amiable manners that run to a courtly bow over the hands of females, a refinement that bisected more than one of the angles present.

A BACTERIOLOGIST from Berlin, Heide until recently was Foreign Adviser at the Military Medical College, Canton. An expert on the hookworm, he enthralled us with an account of his researches into the life and habits of that dread parasite. Whilst in Canton he conceived the idea of making a moving picture of the birth of a hookworm. "Taking a single egg from the uterus of a female (a delicate operation because the egg is less than 0.01 of a millimetre), Heide placed it on a slide under a powerful microscope; fixed the temperature at 80 F. Over the microscope he suspended a slow motion camera adjusted to take four pictures a minute for thirty hours at the end of which period the larva is fully developed. "The thirty hour record took me a year to complete," said Doctor Heide. "I had hundreds of failures and spent so much time with hookworms that my friends on Shamen nicknamed me Professor Hookvurm," he finished smilingly.

THE film filled an important gap in the biological biography of the family life of the hookworm, the investigating of which has occupied many bacteriologists, taken years of patient research, and cost millions imported, an expensive and owing to interrupted communications, often unreliable source of supply. When we congratulated him on making a fortune, he shook his head, said: "It is my last gift to China. It is sufficient reward for me to know that the work of my Chinese medical colleagues can go on."

Unbuttoned

THE only thing arty about Gytha Owen is the "Gestha." Otherwise she is a sensible woman with lively blue eyes and no lipstick. An artist by inclination, she has a bread and butter job writing advertising copy for Millingtons and unlike a lot of talented people who are forced by circumstances to gain their living by a safe toll, does it competently. A pupil of stern old Archibald Nicol, she spent weepy hours locked up with plaster casts until—as she puts it—"I got things right." The result is that most of the pictures on exhibition last week at the Richard Hancock's menage, showed sound draughtsmanship and a healthy contempt for the facile.

THAT Owen made Nicol mad

Owen admits, but we're open to bet that the Maestro wouldn't feel too bad about "Striped Counterpane," a n'de brunette on warm pink; "His Excellency the Governor, Sir Geoffrey Northcote," study of a diplomat with shrewd eyes; and "Pattern of Life," an off the record portrait of a woman with a past.

THESE are people's unbuttoned (the nude down to the waist), as Owen sees them. And that personal insight marks the portrait painter as a distinction from the landscape artist. A scenic painter can be almost anybody with a box of paints and a feeling for colour; a portrait painter can hardly be anything else but himself, for the hills and valleys resist corruption while the flesh is corrupt. Owen's interpretations are cool, balanced, in "Pattern of Life" the woman is dark with the heavy darkness of middle-age, flatulence and endless pink pills. One look and you instinctively know that she has a nagging pain—can almost hear the doctor whisper "Cancer" to the married daughter. Yet the pinched eyes burn with unquenchable vitality. It is the face of a woman whose body has betrayed her by growing old. An unguarded moment and all-revealing.

OUR principal defects are impatience, selfishness, foolish generosity, fickleness of purpose, egom, jealousy. We are too sarcastic, careless in financial matters, and lack order, system and method.

Well folks, it's up to you.

GYTHA OWEN.

Our sex life is difficult. We are only really happy when mated to one who understands our temperament, which (says our horoscope) unfortunately seldom happens. Those born under Libra (September) and Gemini (May) are most suited to us. Our alliments are mild but unpleasant. We are prone to nervous insomnia, headaches, catarrh. We should avoid alcoholic stimulants, live on a plain diet, get plenty of fresh air and sleep.

— to assure perfect results.
With Royal, there's no waste of good ingredients through baking failures

The light, tender texture of these delicious Banana Biscuits makes them especially tempting. And you can be sure of a fine texture every time if you use Royal.

Royal is the Cream of Tartar baking powder that so many housewives depend on nowadays. It guards the flavour of your good fresh butter, milk and other fine ingredients... and builds up fine, even texture that holds the flavour for days.

Next time you need baking powder, don't take chances with an inferior brand. Be sure to ask for Royal.

BANANA BISCUITS

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter

$\frac{1}{4}$ cup milk, or part milk and part water
2 bananas
juice of 1 lemon
2 tablespoons sugar

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; add butter and mix in thoroughly with fork. Add milk to make soft dough. Turn out on floured board and toss lightly until outside looks smooth. Roll out $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch thick. Cut with floured biscuit cutter. Place on greased pan. Cut bananas in $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch thick slices; roll them in lemon juice and sugar. Press one slice of banana on top of each biscuit. Bake in hot oven about 20 minutes, or until banana is browned. Makes 16 two-inch biscuits.

SMALL STATES AND THE CZECH DISMEMBERMENT

New Anxieties In Europe

THE European events of the distinguished English statesman who last few weeks, the dismemberment, wrote: "We had the choice between the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia and the twin dishonour and war. We methods applied are matters of those dishonour—and notwithstanding absorbing and appealing interest standing our dishonour, we shall to every small state in Europe, have war."

And the prospect of further meetings of the four leaders of the Great Powers bodes ill for the point is that the sentiment of the smaller states. They regard it pressed was that prevailing among the friends of England and the first British delegate to a rabbit who has had the privilege of seeing the pythons in the Zoological Garden food upon other to decide whether the decisions taken by England and France of his kind.

Czechoslovakia was the product of the Versailles treaty; it was what extent they can serve, the created by England, France, Italy and the United States; the integrity of its territories was guaranteed by England and France; she was France's ally; for years the leading statesmen of Czechoslovakia—Mauryk and Benes—were, idolized by England, and France. No man served the policy of the British-French entente with greater loyalty and ability, and with more fervour and faith than did Benes. And Czechoslovakia was dismembered with the active aid of England, later with France's approval without being given an opportunity of pleading her cause: without consultation, without a hearing.

This is not the place to discuss whether the frontiers of Czechoslovakia were justified, nor whether the actual regime in Czechoslovakia had been at all times wise, and moderate, tolerant and farseeing. Only states which know and approve no suppression of racial or religious minorities would have any right to public recrimination against a regime which never caused the minorities section of the League of Nations any serious difficulties. And, the fact remains that the frontiers were laid down by the Great Powers and that any doubts as to their servicability expressed by the leaders of Czechoslovakia were severely silenced by England and France.

Now, there are some small states whose frontiers are not guaranteed by the Great Powers; they are not their allies; they have not been party to their policy. They have retained—or they had until recently retained, some belief, not unconditional, but still not quite sceptical, in binding international obligations, in certain fundamental principles of international justice and decency and in the right of every state to be heard when its fate and future was at stake. What is left for these nations to expect?

SINISTER
DEPRESSION

Any one who attended the Assembly of the League of Nations in September of this year, must have felt the sinister depression that weighed upon the delegates, irrespective of their political opinions and sympathies.

Of course, no sane man wanted war. But how few shall any state be allowed to exploit this horror of war? Naturally, everybody is for peace. But peace does not necessarily, perhaps not mainly, mean absence of war. And no lasting peace has ever been built on principles of violence, menace, or breach of promises.

It was, commonly said at Geneva: "There will be no war as a process. But the dismemberment of 1772 was followed in Poland by a second and third process of war."—But afterwards? What will the world be of this kind, in 1933 and 1935. Events march more rapidly now-a-days.

A distinguished representative of a small country said in Geneva: "Now we know how it is done. My state is so small that our suppression will not be worth even the cost of an air-ticket to Berlin."

DISHONOUR
AND WAR

Young Men's Fancy Lightly Turns To Thoughts Of Beavers

STOWAWAYS DIE WHILE HIDING

London, Yesterday. Two young German Jews who travelled half across the world to escape from Germany met a terrible death while hiding from the law in a ship in West India Dock, London.

Having escaped from the s.s. Liberty, where they were being held in custody, they were asphyxiated in the hold of the s.s. Jamaica Progress, which had been fumigated.

The men, Richard Bergmann and Heinz Marchlowitz or Borna, both about 25 years of age, got away from Germany a few months ago and made their way to the West Indies. They were apparently unable to obtain employment there and decided to try their luck in London.

They got aboard the s.s. Liberty, which was coming to England, but when they reached the West India Dock they were refused permission to land.

ESCAPED FROM CUSTODY

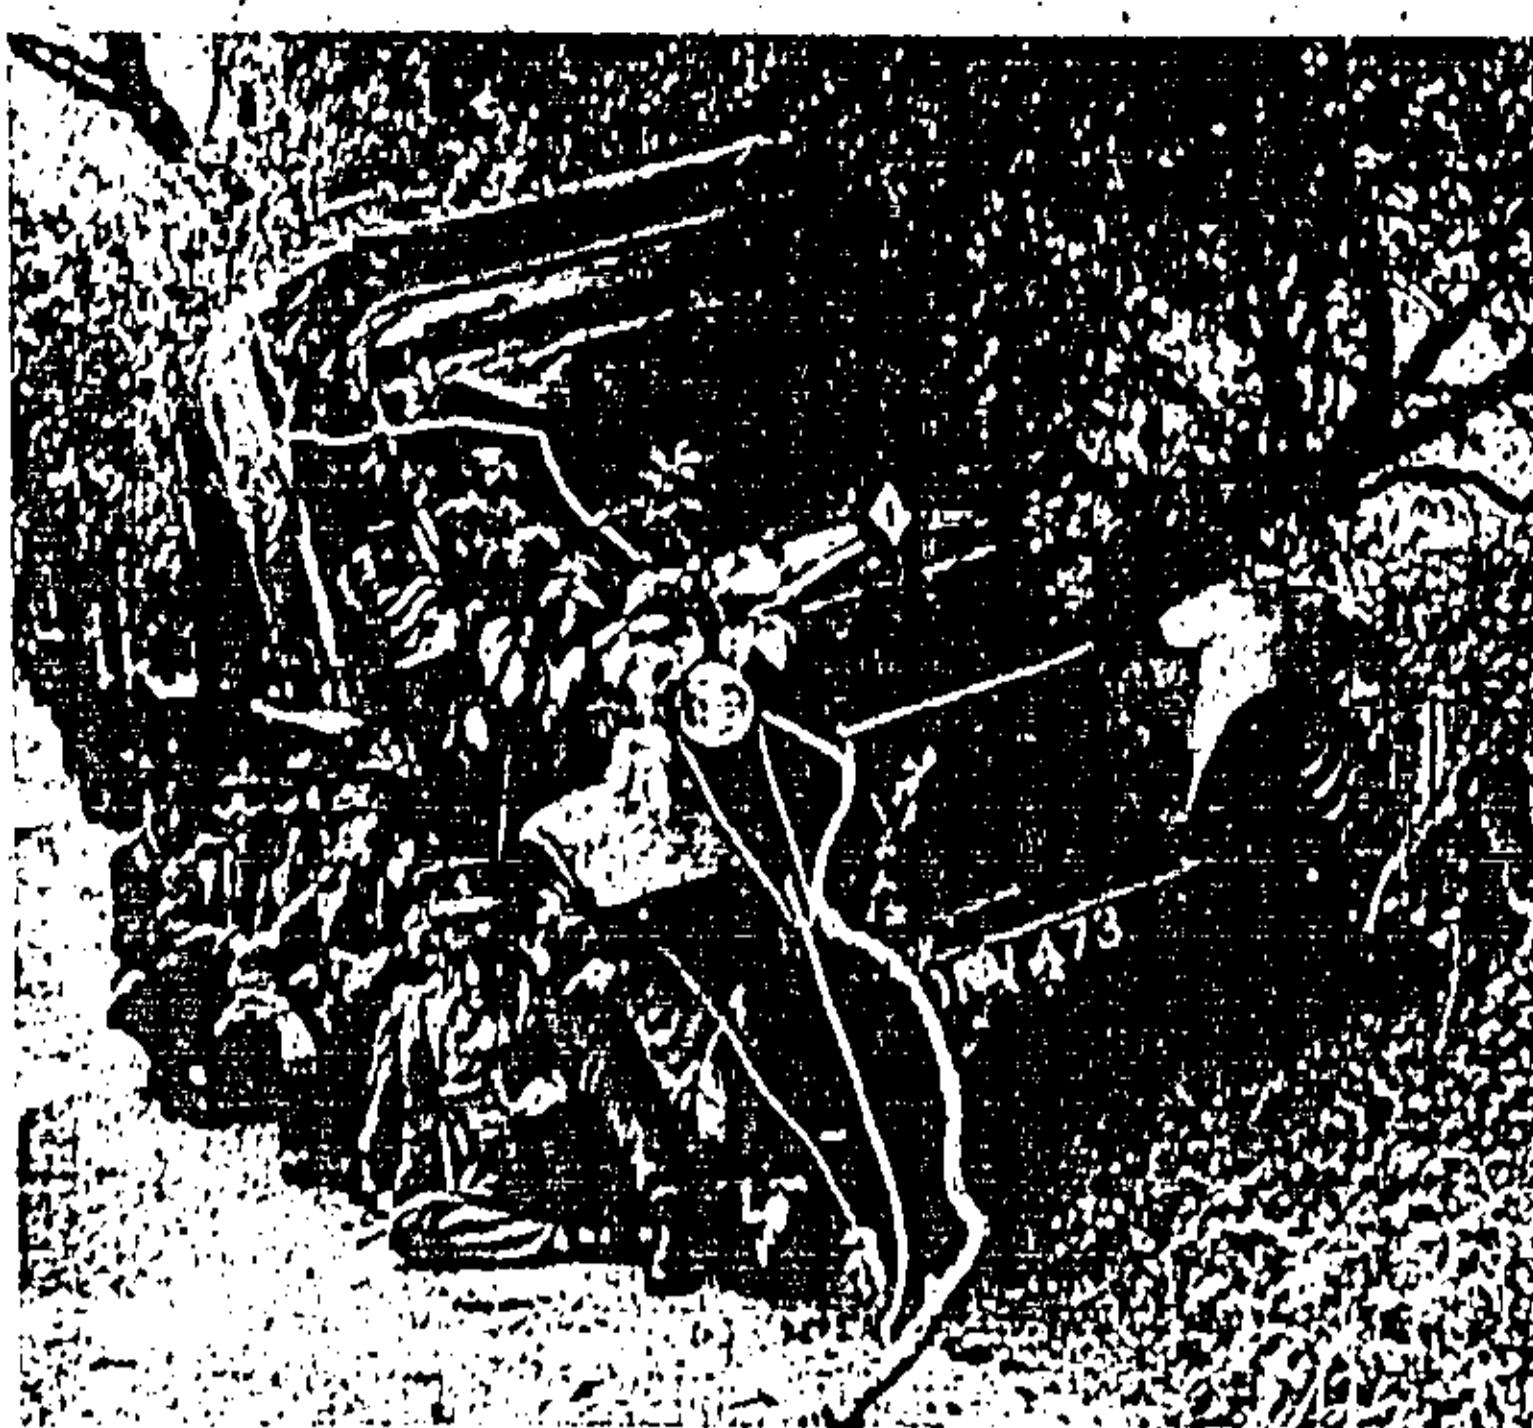

Under escort the men were taken back to the Liberty and arrangements were made for that boat to take them away again when it left the docks.

Later, however, it was reported that the two had disappeared from their prison in the Liberty.

Meanwhile the s.s. Jamaica Progress was lying in the docks not far from the Liberty while arrangements were being made for fumigating her in accordance with Board of Trade regulations.

The two young Germans climbed aboard and hid in a hold.

Members of the crew who entered the hold after the fumigating discovered the bodies.

Special exercises are now being carried out by the R.A.S.C. designed to test the Army's new system of supplying food and petrol to modern formations. A petrol company and a petrol "park" both new units in a new organisation comprising over 200 vehicles, are taking part. The petrol company consists of lorries "feeding" forward to the units direct. The "park" vehicles in turn supply the petrol company. The exercise is also a test for the R.A.S.C. units' self defence. Photo shows how the vehicles are camouflaged to hide them from attacking planes. A picture taken at Coddenham, Suffolk.

DEAD MAN BY BLOWN-OUT SAFE

London, Yesterday. Police called by telephone to an inn at Gateshead found a man lying dead in the cellar near a wall safe which had been blown open.

The dead man, who had apparently been struck by the heavy metal door of the safe following an explosion, was Robert Richards, aged 38, of Richard-street, Elswick, father of four, who had recently returned from the Kentish coalfields. The police stated:

A man was killed while attempting to force open a safe by the use of explosives at the Prince of Wales public house in Romulus-street, Gateshead.

The man's brother is in custody and will appear before the magistrates on Monday morning.

The brother is Walter Richards, aged 41, of Noble-street, Elswick.

First news of the tragedy was revealed in a telephone call to police headquarters.

Flying Squad officers and ambulances were immediately rushed to the inn where, at the foot of a flight of wooden steps leading into the low-roofed cellar from behind the bar counter, they found Robert Richards lying dead.

"Cracked" by Samsonite

At the far end of the cellar along a passage-way lined with barrels a safe built into the wall was open.

Week-end takings, amounting to about £60 in notes and coin, were strewn about the door.

After the body had been removed fingerprint and photographic experts examined the premises for several hours.

They found that the safe had been "cracked" apparently with the aid of a powerful explosive known as Samsonite.

They also found around the steel walls of the safe traces of potted meat, similar to that sold in a bar of the inn, which had been used seemingly in an attempt to dent the metal.

(Continued from next column) ing for rich customers who, in exceptional times, wish to transfer property abroad. Among the latest finds of the Customs police on the Italo-Yugoslav frontier was a motor-car number-plate made entirely of gold and painted in black and white.

Sun Gives ★

Pale Flicker Beside

★ This Star

A star, 400,000 times brighter than the sun at its zenith, has been discovered in America. It is thought that this star may prove to be the hottest, densest, and, at its maximum, the brightest object ever known to mankind, according to reports which have just reached this country.

This super nova—a "suicide star"—was discovered by Professor Fritz Zwicky of the Palomar Observatory, which will soon accommodate the world's largest telescope. Professor Zwicky believes that its surface temperature may be at least several hundred thousand degrees.

The star weighs about 6,000,000 tons to the cubic inch and is 60 miles in diameter.

Professor Zwicky believes that it may provide one of the most far-reaching proofs of Einstein's theory of relativity.

DID JULIANA BUY LOST RACEHORSE?

London, Yesterday. The famous French racehorse Microbe, alleged to have been stolen from Mrs. Walter Lethbridge, wife of the English racehorse owner, of Maison Lafitte, near Paris, may be in Princess Julian's stables near Baarn, Holland.

Microbe is one of eight horses which Mrs. Lethbridge sold in April to a Dutch horse dealer, who disappeared without paying. A report from Holland says Microbe has been bought by a representative of Princess Julianne.

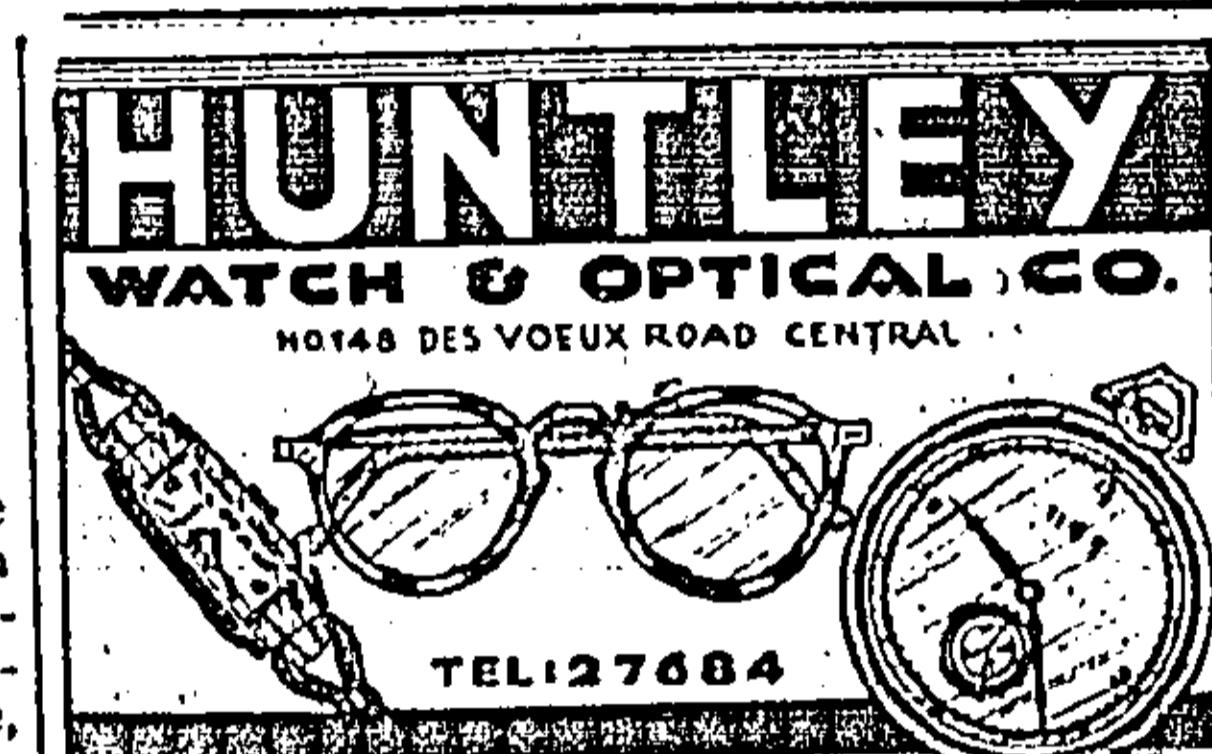

Microbe is a five-year-old mare which has won many races in France. The price for which Mrs. Lethbridge agreed to sell her was $300.

NUMBER PLATE OF GOLD

Trieste, Yesterday. Features of the smuggling across the frontier of gold, platinum, precious stones, and Italian and foreign banknotes are described in an inquiry conducted by the Piccolo.

Chocolates stuffed with diamonds, railway cushions and bookbindings padded with banknotes, platinum bar converted into a hammer and thrown, in apparently careless fashion, among the normal tools of a motor-car driver, are some of the methods devised by the fertile imagination of professional smugglers entering the frontier.

A Revelation for Stomach Distress

The Right Way and Quickest Way to Relieve the Cause, Excess Acidity

If you are one of the many thousands who suffer from Sour Stomach, Gas on the Stomach, Distress after Meals—here's good news for you! There is now a sure, safe and easy way for you to get quick, lasting relief!

Medical Science has at last discovered the cause of most common stomach troubles and has also developed a remedy which gives almost instant relief from the pain and discomfort—and also corrects the cause of the trouble.

The name of this remarkable product, which has brought grateful relief to so many thousands of sufferers, is Alka-Seltzer. This amazing preparation is most remarkable in the way in which it quickly relieves Headaches, Sour Stomach, Flatulence, "Neuralgia" and Rheumatic pains; Lumbago, and other common complaints caused by an excess and condition of the system.

To get relief from these troubles, you simply drop an Alka-Seltzer Tablet in a glass of water. It immediately bubbles up and dissolves, making a sparkling, pleasant-tasting solution. You drink it and your pain and discomfort will vanish so quickly that you'll be agreeably surprised. But Alka-Seltzer does more than just give you relief—it also corrects the excess acid condition of your stomach which causes your trouble. It's a DOUBLE-ACTING remedy—it relieves the pain and is also a corrector.

There is nothing else on the market like Alka-Seltzer or equal to it. It is so easy and pleasant to take—children as well as older folk like it. It is not a laxative, so can be taken freely at any time.

At all Chemists in two convenient sizes. Try it today,

A nice glass of beer—clear as sunlight, golden, sparkling. Ask for Whitbread and your first taste will tell you this is thirst-worthy beer. A roundness beneath the bite of English malts mingled with Kentish hops. A beer with body as well as brilliance—Whitbread's Pale Ale (brewed and bottled only by Whitbreads) is always in the cream of condition. Whenever, wherever, however you drink it—beer at its best!

THE CANTON DISASTER

NO Cantonese, save puppet traitors, can stomach the fall of Canton. It is not only an immeasurable disaster but a national humiliation and shame. It is also an indictment of Cantonese leadership; for all who are familiar with the approach to the City of Rams are aware that a few thousand men under resolute leadership could have delayed the Japanese advance for the brief period necessary for the arrival of tried and tested re-inforcements from the North.

That this leadership was not forthcoming in the hour of need has terribly dismayed those who sympathise with China's cause. The magnificent effort, both military and moral, made by Marshal Chiang Kai-shek was beginning to convince even the most sceptical (and there are none more unbelieveable than those who live on the fringe of China) that the day of China's national rehabilitation was near at hand. In one short week the prestige gained has been sharply discounted. Cries of traitor, accusations of cowardice and corruption, are once more being bruited in the street.

The apportionment of blame for the disaster can wait. There must be no panic. What must be driven home at the shortest possible notice, is the importance of national solidarity. A nation that survived Nanking can survive Canton—and Hankow. Whispers of a split between North and South, of separate negotiations for a truce, are being spread. Should these probably Japanese-inspired rumours be allowed to spread unchecked, the fate of China is sealed.

Militarily, the position is but little altered by the fall of Canton. Chiang Kai-shek is convinced that the supreme decision lies with the aim of keeping the Japanese army in the field until economic exhaustion breaks down the Japanese military power.

Like Haig, who endured three years of adverse comment and back door obstruction from the Frocks for his insistence that the final decision rested on the Western Front, the Generalissimo has not swerved from his decision to make every hill and valley around the capital a costly monument to the invaders. And this fact will always remain: The Japanese walk-over should never have been allowed. Its spectacular nature allows the Japanese to claim a major victory at a trifling cost; heartens the economically depressed Japanese peasants, and gives a needed fillip to the morale of the Japanese army. Naturally enough, Japanese propagandists will not neglect the opportunity to press home charges of treachery. But to listen to critics now would be to elide and mire Japan's task easier. To those whose homes and property are destroyed or, in chancery, the answer is faith. Those who accuse Hankow of throwing Kwangtung to the wolves overlook the fact that even had the Generalissimo desired to come to Canton's rescue, the complete inaptitude in high command in Kwangtung robbed him of the privilege of decision on a matter vital to the strategy of the entire campaign.

Not in our time has there developed in Britain a more grimly determined political tug-o-war than is now being witnessed as the aftermath of the Munich Agreement. Not all the intensity of the struggle is pain on the surface, but no clearer sign is necessary than the failure of Mr. Chamberlain to appoint successors to Mr. Duff Cooper at the Admiralty and to Lord Stanley at the Dominions Office. Mr. Duff Cooper resigned a fortnight ago and is leading a band of young Conservatives, convinced of the perils of the foreign policy now being pursued by Mr. Chamberlain. The delay in filling the vacancy is almost unprecedented and can only be explained by the uncertainty of the Prime Minister as to how to meet the rising tide of unrest in the Conservative Party. What is more, his friends will do him more harm than his opponents, if like Sir Samuel Hoare, the burden of their defence of the Prime Minister is confidence in the assurances of the Dictators.

The fact that the Prime Minister should require a studied campaign to justify himself to public opinion is in itself indicative of the weight against him. The Tory split is not merely towards the Centre but also on the extreme Right, with Lord Lloyd and Mr. L. M. S. Amery just as severe critics as Brigadier General Spear. Mr. Anthony Eden, however, is the Prime Minister's keenest antagonist, and most dangerous rival, for he is astute enough not to lend himself to sharp criticism of the peace, but concentrates on the problems to be faced in consequence and makes an appeal which is capturing imagination, as well as the support of the Liberals, for complete reorganisation of the Government on a broad and truly national basis.

To his campaign has been added, oddly enough in view of the circumstances of his re-cast into the limbo the scheme of the Foreign Office for a three-way partition. The tongues of Herr Efforts now will be concentrated.

on (a) restoring order in the country by determining punitive measures and (b) achieving a settlement with Arab opinion by British retention of the mandate and working out a scheme whereby Arabs and Jews can reside side by side in peace. Storming of the Old City of Jerusalem by the Coldstream Guards was the first step in restoring order, but a problem was presented by the spectacle of 2,000 Arab rebels taking refuge in the Mosque of Omar, into which no troops could go without causing an outcry throughout the entire Moslem world. Acts of sabotage are, meantime, increasing rather than otherwise and it is evident that a long time will elapse before tranquillity reigns again.

Meanwhile, Europe is not yet out of the Czechoslovakian wood. Hungary demands far more than the Czech or Slovaks will concede. Poland is playing her own game, backing Hungary and endeavouring to bribe Rumania into acquiescence with a parcel of Czechoslovakian territory for herself. It is a tribute to King Carol that he sent Colonel Beck back to Warsaw empty-handed. The intriguing feature of the situation, apart from Poland's scarcely disguised partitioning intrigue, is to be found in the attitudes respectively of Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini. Herr Hitler appears to have done a very satisfying deal with Prague, which has left him well disposed to Czechoslovakian claims. Signor Mussolini, for reasons of his own, is backing Hungary for all he is worth. The outcome of this pretty set-up must be a vital factor in the future of Europe.

The unfortunate turn of events was also, doubtless, an inducement to Mr. Wang Ching-wei to throw out the peace feeler with which he is credited. The tone of his statement, however, was comforting. If China's morale has been damaged, there is no disposition yet towards peace at any price.

arms induces, and is largely owing to the fact that war is not as yet a science, but an affection of knowledge, rather, based on loose maxims and received customs the origins of which, too often, are buried in a remote past.

Gustavus Adolphus turned a quick attention to the means of increasing mobility and fire power. His musketeers were two-thirds of his array and, without the cumbersome fork-support, they fired in a three-deep line. He sub-divided his line, in length and depth, into flexible detachments so that it might bend without the need to break.

Above all, undeterred by historical example, he put full faith in cavalry, while reforming the principle on which it worked. He relied on the shock effect of a properly prepared charge, the preparation being brought about by the fire power of his musketeers and by the light field pieces which accompanied the army.

His horse charged at the gallop at the directed point in ranks of three, the first of which discharged their pistols as a preliminary with the object of completing the enemy's discomfiture before the charge went home.

Cromwell imitated him in our Civil War, and even transcended his example by basing his brilliant operations mainly on his mounted strength. The French were likewise infected, for the Great Condé, at Rocroi in the Ardennes, 1643, won a crushing victory over the military power of Spain by means of cavalry, as a result of which France dominated Europe for the next 50 years.

The wheel had come full circle. Cavalry was reinstated in the military mind, and it required the machine-gun nests of the Great War to convince the world of arms that shock tactics had no more right on a modern field of battle than the Doric spear.

In China, the Canton debacle appears likely to be followed soon by the fall of Hankow after four months of heroic resistance. On Friday afternoon, Japanese warships, overcoming booms and mines, had forced their way within 19 miles of Hankow. Taiyeh had fallen and the Chinese troops are falling back all along the line. News of the invasion of Kwangtung is believed to have been contributed to Japan's successes this week. Cantonese and Kwangtai troops were, largely, responsible for the magnificent stubbornness against odds that enabled Tean and Yangtsin to hold out so long. Between their retirement and the Kwangtung invasion, it seems extremely likely that there was direct connection. Li Chung-ien was fretting to be allowed to take his troops south.

The unfortunate turn of events was also, doubtless, an inducement to Mr. Wang Ching-wei to throw out the peace feeler with which he is credited. The tone of his statement, however, was comforting. If China's morale has been damaged, there is no disposition yet towards peace at any price.

Battle Of Ideas: by L. E. O. Charlton
What Is War Technique?

LET us now swiftly follow the main streams of strategy, from the days of classic warfare, until they lead us, through mediaevalism, to the 18th century and to a military figure, that of Marshal Saxe, who emerged therefrom as an exponent of an art of war which was perfected, 50 years later, by Napoleon.

Wars, between the Greeks and Persians, in which the former scored their final victory at Marathon, make a convenient starting point. The Greeks were repeatedly successful throughout the whole tremendous struggle, and this was due to the tactical formation in which they fought.

It was the phalanx, the strength of which depended on serried ranks of pikemen wedged together in a solid mass, and an army thus composed could only fight to best advantage on flat and open ground. As long as the ranks held well and good. But if they became dislocated, either by a successful charge or by being driven back, then the phalanx fell an easy prey to its adversary, for men armed only with a ten-foot spear can hardly face about at will for self-defence.

This, in fact, is what happened when it encountered the Roman Legion, to meet its Waterloo at Cynocephalae. For the characteristic of the legion was flexibility, as against the rigidity of the phalanx, and when a nameless tribuno got behind the Macedonians at the above-mentioned battle he had them to the hip.

We now pass on to the Second Punic War, at the outset of which even, the legion could not cope with the elasticity of Hannibal's battle order, based on wings of cavalry, until the Roman General, Scipio, remodelled it. Chiefly, he utilized the rear lines as a reserve and manoeuvre mass instead of using them to fill the gaps in front, and at Zama he put the seal on his reform endeavour by crushing the Cartaginians. The legionary system, itself, was overthrown at Adrianople by the Goths in A.D. 378. It had become rusted in the joints as it from old age, with a loss of flexibility and an inability to withstand flank attack from the mounted enemy.

Followed the Dark Ages, and the curtain does not rise again for our purpose until the English archers, entrenched and palisaded, upset the early cavalry tradition and caused the chivalry of France to bite the dust.

The pendulum swung again in the time of Joan of Arc, for artillery came on the scene of war, and our archers, enshaded as they stood, were forced to the assault and laid themselves open to a counter-attack for which they were not well equipped. But the French had been unshod to little purpose, and at Pavie, in 1525, their cavalry was completely routed by the Spanish arquebusiers, trained to act disperately, and each man on his own.

For the time being, shock tactics became unfashionable, and the military power of Spain supreme, the latter to remain so until a century later, Gustavus Adolphus, who founded modern warfare, proved the superiority of Swedish legionary tactics over the decadent formations of the Spanish arms, the former manoeuvrability of which, founded on individual fire power and a guerilla aptitude, had degenerated into something very like the Greek phalanx.

It is a process which repeats itself in history over again, this deterioration of a model of military success, and we are no more free from it to-day than were the ancients or the mediaevals.

It springs from that intense conservatism which the profession of

New Post For French Ambassador In China?

PARIS, YESTERDAY. TO-DAY'S MEETING OF COUNCIL OF MINISTERS IS EXPECTED TO BE OF A SHORT DURATION AND TO CONCERN ITSELF PRIMARILY WITH THE DIPLOMATIC RESHUFFLE FOLLOWING THE APPOINTMENT OF M. FRANCOIS- PONCET TO THE POST IN ROME.

The Paris "Soir" has named M. Nogier, the present French Ambassador in China, for the Nanking post, although it also hints the choice may fall on M. Lebonne, the present French diplomatic envoy in Barcelona.

It is believed that changes will be made in the offices of the High Commission for Syria and of the French President "General in Tunis."

According to "Intransigent," the Council of Ministers will give its endorsement to the first decrees relating to certain new social laws. Over and beyond this, the French Premier has the intention of informing his colleagues concerning his plans for a rebuilding of his Cabinet.

These plans aim at enlisting into the ranks of the Government a number of experts, either as TOKYO, YESTERDAY. A semi-official pronouncement on the capture of Canton by the Japanese says that it is presumed that the Chinese Government will now try to obtain its supply of war material by the way of Indo-China.

Nevertheless, it may be expected that "this route will very soon be blocked as the result of further actions by the Japanese army and navy." — Trans-Ocean.

LONDON, YESTERDAY. THE SWIFT FALL OF CANTON AND THE APPARENT IMPLICATION THAT HANKOW WILL SHORTLY FOLLOW, GIVEN MUCH PROMINENCE IN THE NEWSPAPERS, HAS CREATED AMAZEMENT IN BRITAIN.

That the end is not yet, is the conclusion of the "Daily Telegraph," which recalls that the Japanese offensive was planned months ago and was delayed owing to the proximity of Hong Kong and to fear of international complications.

Evidently Japan is now resolved that the latter risk is worth taking in view of the chance it offers of forcing a decision.

It seems, says the "Telegraph," that Japan is still determined to pursue the war as long as General Chiang Kai-shek remains at the head of the Government.

The Generalissimo's authority, hitherto proof against every military disaster, will continue to draw the Japanese further and further into the interior in an endless pursuit.

HOLD WEAKENING While the Japanese are making themselves masters of every strategic point, their grip on the intervening regions, thanks to the indefatigable persistence of Chinese guerrillas, is materially weakening.

It is one thing to win pitched battles but quite another to effectively garrison a country as enormous as China. — Reuter.

GEN. YU HAN-MOU SUBJECT TO QUESTIONING CRITICISM

LONDON, YESTERDAY. The Japanese, whose strength is reported to be only two, and perhaps three divisions, ought never to have had a walk-over of this sort," says "The Times" on the "debacle of Canton."

The Chinese failure is strange as well as humiliating, says the journal.

Its spectacular nature gives the victorious Japanese political as well as strategic advantages.

They will probably try to do this now, but their prospects are badly impaired by their own blemishes.

A few nonentities will doubtless be found to form the usual sham administration in Canton, but the province as a whole is likely to prove obdurate, and may, when one or two of its generals have been shot, offer stiff resistance to a further Japanese advance.

General Wu Tch-chen (the Kwangtung Governor), is an official of whose loyalty and resolution there has in the past been no reason to doubt, but General Yu Han-mou (commander of the 4th Route Army) hardly seems to have

JAPAN'S PROSPECTS

If the invasion of Canton had happened when it was planned ten months ago and met with the success which crowns it to-day, the Japanese might reasonably have hoped to engineer defection in South China and conclude a separate peace.

In the meantime, it is sincerely to be hoped that the Japanese officers will contrive to hold back their men from perpetrating the excesses which have disgraced the Japanese flag elsewhere in China. — Reuter.

LUFTHANSA'S ATLANTIC ACHIEVEMENTS

Berlin, Yesterday.

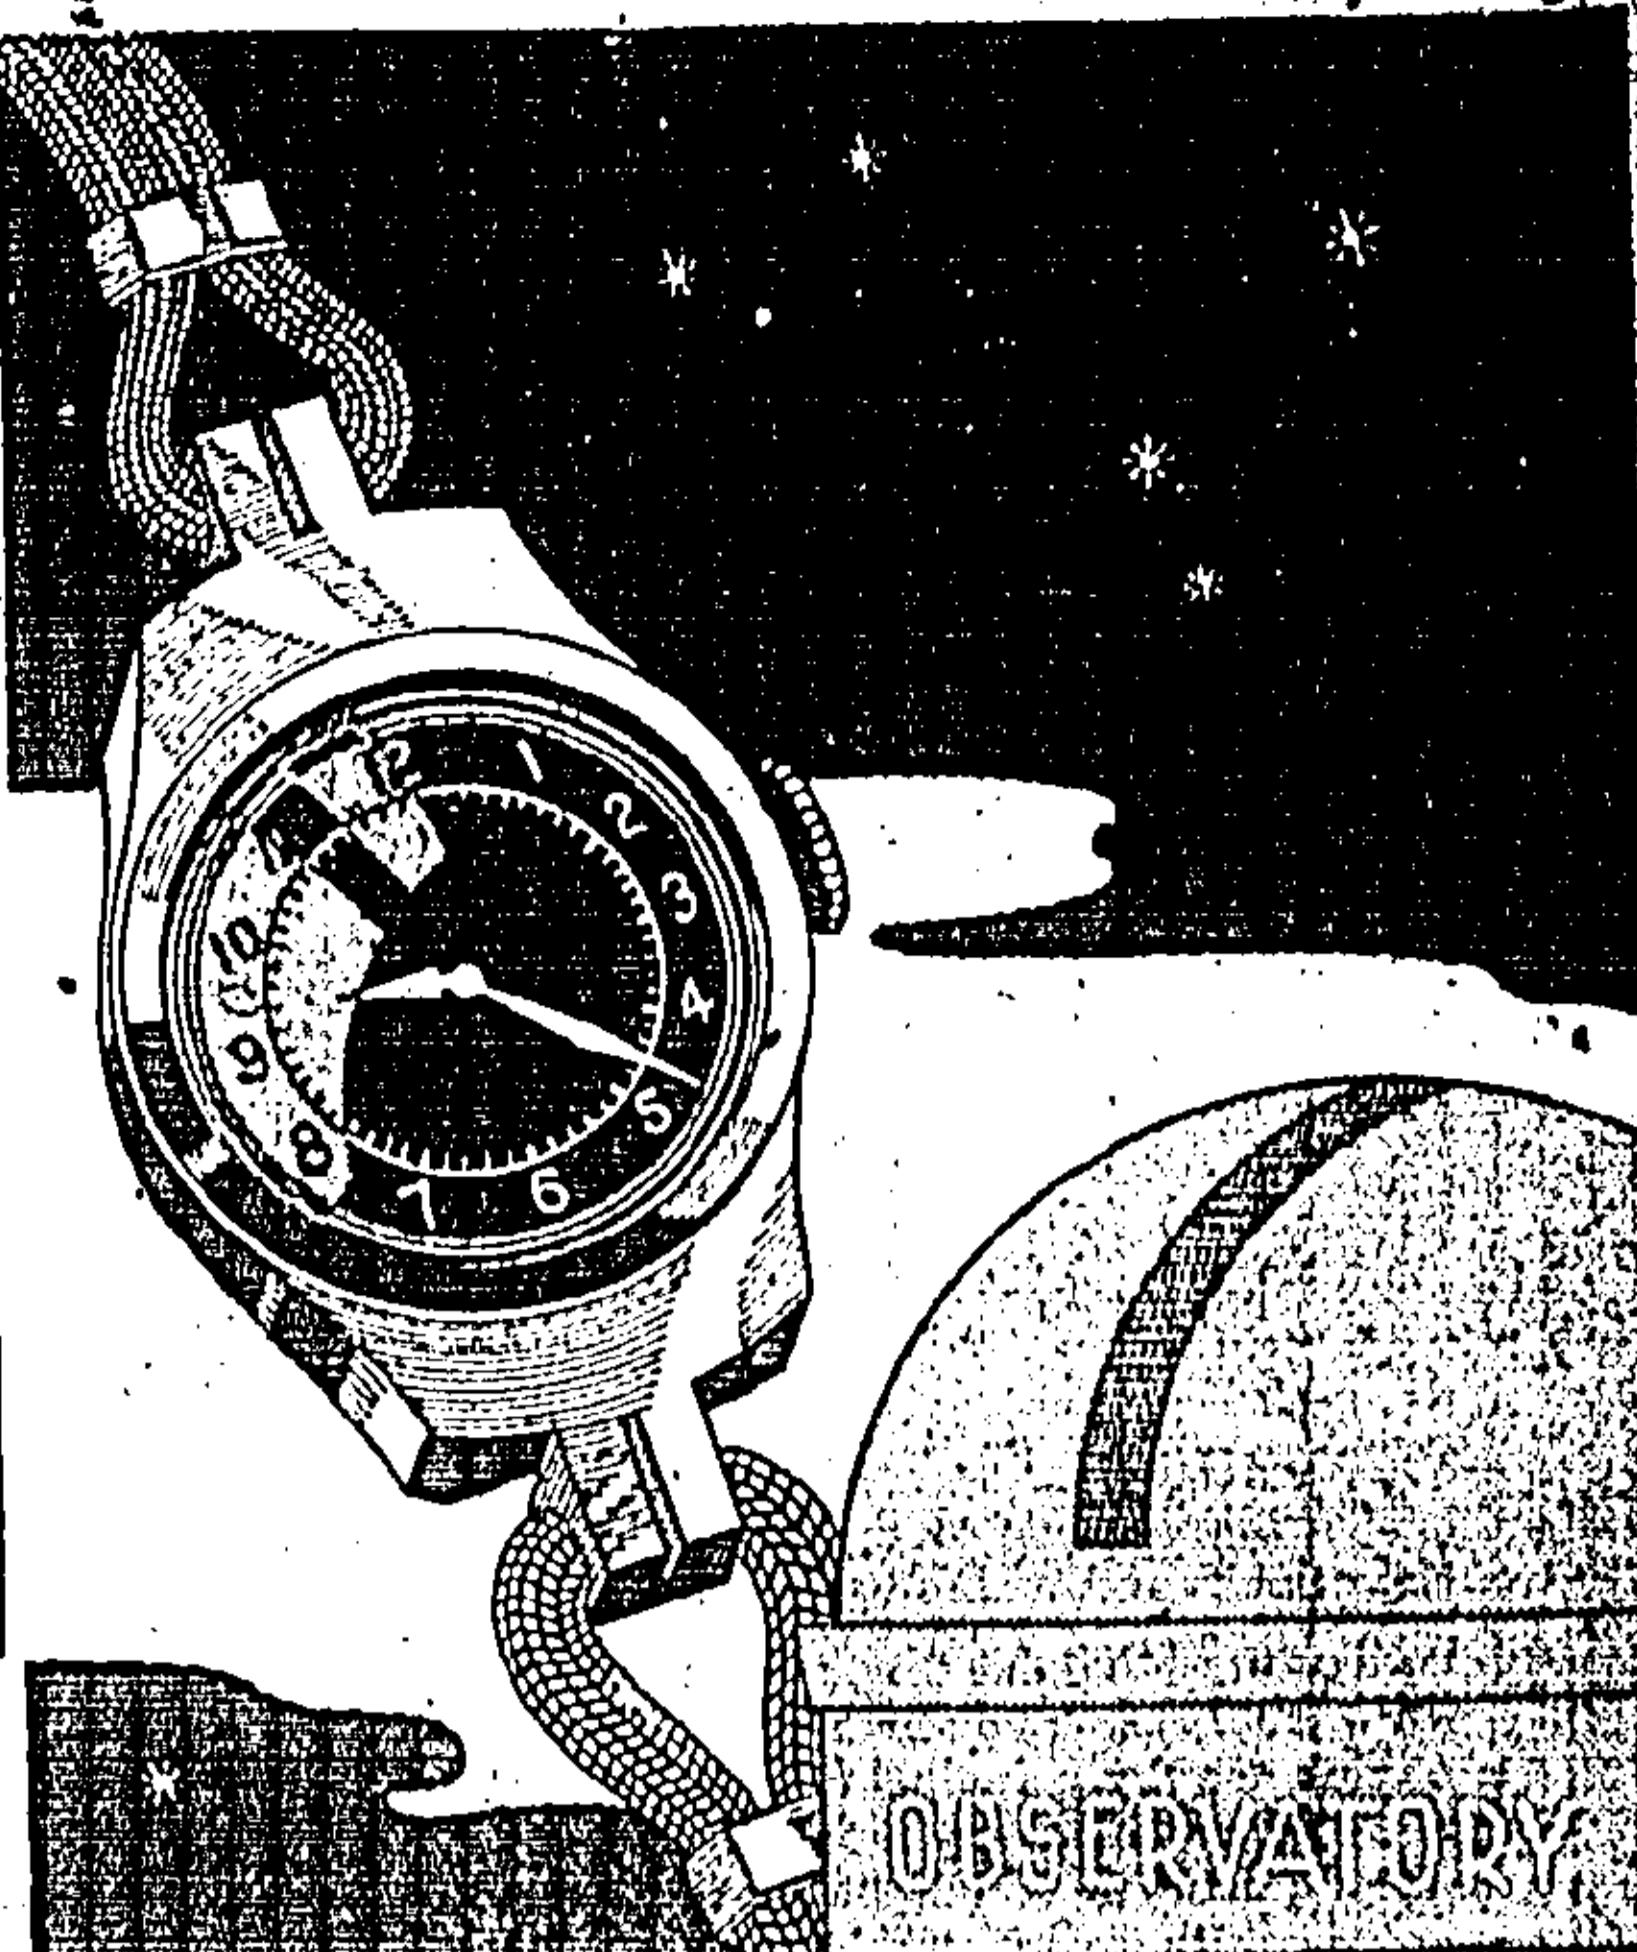

With the record flight of the plane "Nordstern" from America to Europe, German Lufthansa Company closed this year's North Atlantic air traffic.

Twenty-eight flights were made from July 21 to October 20. Lufthansa planes covered a total of 1,369,834 kilometres over the North and South Atlantic up to October 20.

Travelling speed across the North Atlantic has been remarkably increased since the experimental flights of 1936. Average travelling speed from Horta to New York was 192 kilometres per hour in 1936 and 240 kilometres this year. In the opposite direction from New York to Horta, average speed was 216 kilometres in 1936 and 270 in 1938. — Trans-Ocean.

The Other Side---The Suffering Side Of Life

A truce this week to communists, and popular fronts, and leftist propagandists—time I am going to deal with the other side of life, the suffering side.

I do not know whether it would be true or not to say that man is by nature cowardly. Certainly civilised man tends to cowardice in many things, and one phase of it is a tendency to escape from unpleasant things. Not merely does he try to avoid pain, for that is natural, but he tries to avoid contact with it, and to avoid contact also with death and poverty and misfortune of every kind. It takes a certain amount of courage, and of violence to one's natural inclinations, to let the suffering of others have part in our lives, but unless we do that we are cowards—and no one likes to be thought a coward or to admit to himself that he is one.

One may put help for suffering on a different plane, such as that of duty, and our common humanity certainly demands that we should take our share in bearing the burdens that fall so much more severely on some than on others, but I prefer to put it on the plane of courage: we shall be conscious of the suffering that is in the world if we merely overcome our natural repugnance to facing it, and, when once we face it, the good that is fundamental in our human nature will impel us to help it.

Suffering in our Midst

There probably has never been a week in the history of the Colony when the suffering that exists all about us has been brought to our eyes as forcibly before our eyes as this past week. The war, with its ghastly suffering of a thousand kinds—and this just beyond our territory, the air raids in Kwangtung; the revelations about housing conditions; the additional poverty caused in the Colony by the past months of war, all these have been brought before our eyes. It is perhaps a natural impulse to turn the other way, but that is the cowardly way; it is the familiar. It happened that I went brave, and at present the necessary thing to face these problems, a business man declare with antisemitic, if refugees are few they say that there is no depression paper are among those little touched by the prevailing suffering, and may be none in Ice House St.—my unpleasant question is: What though I am told that there is— are you going to do about it? Many but there is in the streets of the will say quite honestly that they slum. If you have any doubt as to the suffering of our poor go are doing all that they can. I am to the suffering of our poor go sure that they are many, and a large number do their part quietly, unknown to the public, and getting no credit for it. All honour to them! But there are others. Rightly or wrongly, it is the belief that there are a great many in Hong Kong who are doing just as little as they can; who are glad and misfortune of every kind. It to be here away from the war zone and are acting as if there were no war and no suffering within the reach of their help.

FATHER RYAN'S APPEAL FOR REFUGEES

And there are others who do not feel that they are under any obligation to help—the Government is seeing to all that, as they are contributing indirectly. These last may seem to have justice on their side, but in the case of distress the appeal is to something more deeply rooted in human sympathy than justice. So it is to all, under one title or another, that suffering in its many forms is calling at the present time.

Our Own Poor

are hardened to their claims, for if refugees are few they say that it will be easy to deal with them, but if they are many they say that they are running away and deserve no pity. I wish any hardened person who is in Hong Kong could see the agony written on the faces of some that crouch in the corner of the makeshifts in Kam Tin. They can give no coherent account of the last week. They at St. Peter's Church, at the terror that had haunted them for should, out of their abundance, or out of their own scanty store, give what they can to relieve it. I do not care to what society or organisation you give, if only you can do something to help suffering China. The ties that bind us here in Hong Kong to China silently appeal for it; the claims of our common humanity demand it.

T. RYAN, S. J.

A BREATHER. Refugees stop on the road to Kam Tin camp for a rest.

Salvation Army Hut, Wanchai, for months became a reality one day. Every refugee camp has to make provision for those driven out of their minds by the experiences through which they have passed. It is no wonder; and many others who are still sane sit dazed and miserable.

All this is, perhaps, a commonplace and it may not seem worth repeating, for it is one of the horrors of our terrible age that we are becoming accustomed to things that are the shame of our civilisation. But even at the risk of repeating an appeal that has been very often made, I appeal once more on behalf of the suffering that is around us. It is a mere accident that I have seen more of the agony of refugees during the last few days, but each night I have come back from the sight of it with that sickening feeling of utter helplessness that one feels after being close to great misery. There is a nobility in their suffering that makes, to me at least, the suffering of the Chinese people more poignant than any with which I have been brought into contact. The thought that millions like those whom I have seen are suffering with the same uncomplaining patience haunts me day and night, and so I ask that any who can do so

The Sufferings of War

The next contact with the suffering that is close to us came to me through some who have been in the hospitals of the war zone around Hankow. None of the harrowing stories that you read, or pass over, in the newspapers can equal the reality described by those who have seen brave soldiers die in agony because supplies for their relief were inadequate. The war has taken unawares the peaceful land of China. Never in the history of modern warfare has there been destruction of life and homes on such a wide and terrifying scale; no relief scheme that have ever been devised up to this could cope with the needs of this war—how then can we expect an adequate Medical Service or Red Cross Service to rise up suddenly throughout the whole of China from Peking to Canton? It requires the effort of every friend of China to do not only his own part but, to interest in the needs of China's suffering everyone he knows, who is not deaf to the call of suffering humanity.

The Refugees

Let any of these needs of our fellow-men around us may not seem to make their appeal to you, there are the refugees pouring across our border. Some persons

CENSORSHIP MADE EASY

NOW that war is postponed until further notice, let us proceed with our civilization.

I wish to call your attention to an urgent question raised a week or two ago by Lord Hollenden, president of the British Textile Association, at a trade exhibition at Dartford. I quote from a Press report:

"The conditions which prevail in the Press in times of emergency," said his lordship, "are not all they should be, and the feeling is growing that we shall not get things right until we get control of the Press of the country."

"Councillor Mell: Send for Hitler!"

In examining this proposed reform of democracy, we must first define what is meant by "times of emergency." To a large proportion of the population of prosperous England, a time of emergency arrives regularly every week about two days before pay-day.

It is clear, therefore, that we are living in a more or less permanent state of emergency, and if the control of Press criticism of our social order is to begin at all, it had better begin right away.

There is one primary difficulty about the official control of the Press.

Visitors to Germany report that the heavy censorship of newspapers makes them dull and uninteresting, and that the people are becoming increasingly distrustful of what they read, with the result that circulations are steadily declining.

Now, no matter how officially correct an article or news item may be, it has little effect on public opinion if nobody reads it. I doubt if, even Lord Hollenden, let alone Dr. Goebbels, could train a newspaper to jump off the mat and read itself aloud.

It will not be easy to persuade the British citizenry to absorb the officially prescribed medicine against their inclinations. Even our children are free from such compulsion.

A survey of children's reading published by the Sheffield City Library states that "Adult influence on children's reading, exercised directly, is not important." Meaning that the little devils read what they like, and, if you wish to influence them, a certain subtlety must be exercised.

I am qualified, I think, to speak with some authority on this matter, for I once had the unique and startling experience of being a child myself.

When I was young, way back in the 'umpties, juvenile reading matter was strictly prescribed. All books were barred except

There was much to be said for this kind of censorship. In order to acquire reading matter of a more entertaining and, therefore, more childlike character, the child was constrained to develop secret and complicated systems of barter and larceny.

And there is little doubt that the ingenuity and enterprise thus engendered in the youth of last century by their thirst for digestible literature was a contributory cause of Britain's commercial supremacy.

Many men can testify to the value of direct adult influence over their reading during their receptive and formative years. I can, for one. I owe a great deal to the fact that my parents were careful to forbid me access to books that were likely to do me harm, and that all works of fiction which were judged liable to besmirch my lily-white little soul were locked up in the attic.

For the suppleness of limb and steadiness of nerve which I developed by constantly climbing up the drain-pipe into the attic window have benefited me ever since.

I have observed much the same thing among adults. You will notice that when any book is officially banned, many people will go to any price or distance to get a copy.

The book may be utterly boring, and contain no ideas, words, or information with which you were not thoroughly acquainted before the school-leaving age. But the fact that it is censored causes a stampede.

Aspiring purchasers rush from one Continental city to another looking for booksellers who have had the enterprise to lay in a stock of the forbidden fruit.

cept those guaranteed to point a moral. A typical and famous example was "Eric, or Little by Little," the story of a converted dog-fancier who died repenting of the pups he'd sold.

But it will suffice, once in six months or so, to threaten, and by all the precedents he will get his way.

The French have now only half the population of the enlarged German Reich, and they have three frontiers to defend. If they go under what are our prospects?

Often enough Mr. Baldwin warned us that our frontier is the Rhine. It is also the Pyrenees.

CONTROL OF PYRENEES

What has now to be defended is a limited area on the Atlantic shores, where democracy has still a footing.

Look at the map. This last refuge of freedom is prolonged in a peninsula at whose extremity are the gates of the Mediterranean.

It has some islands: the Balearics, that command the French sea-roads to Africa, and others: the Canaries, that control the Atlantic routes. The master of the Pyrenees, whoever he may be, can answer the question whether France, if she must fight for her life against Fascism, shall fight on two frontiers or on three.

Our own destiny may be decided by the answer. Not arms alone, but allies and strategical keys will settle it. If Spain becomes an enemy base, the narrow Atlantic realm of liberty is encircled. It will then be too late to multiply aircraft or mobilise industry.

PACT WITH ITALY

And who will be the master of the Pyrenees? That question was discussed at Munich with Mussolini.

The plan by all accounts is well under way. The "Gentleman's Pact" is to be ratified presently before it is fulfilled. It is possible that some "token" withdrawal of infantry will be staged; but many times that number will remain with the blocking crews, the tank crews and the artillery, and so will the invaluable 10,000 German specialists, who do all Franco's organisation for him.

The blockade of the republic is to be tightened so as to stop the arrival, not merely of arms for its troops, but of food, and oil and coal. Then, when an heroic people is perishing of starvation, there will be "meditation" on the Munich model.

The suggestion is that a son of the fugitive Alfonso shall be imposed as King. We all know what monarchy means in Spain. It signifies the rule of the landed aristocracy, the officer caste and the Church.

If this treachery is accomplished, the Atlantic realm of freedom is encircled and betrayed.

It will then be useless to call on us for sacrifice to defend our island. England, France and Spain form a single, strategical unit.

AFTER the chaotic jumble of traps on my way to Afghanistan, between —— a barren Baluchistan, between —— a day. For Mr. Pilot has her to Hong Kong.

decided that we shall sleep in Allahabad to night, as he is to make up for lost hours. "Quel dommage!"

But soon we fly another ocean, the Sind desert, burning domain of mirages and thirst. (Lucky Air-France passengers slipping cold drinks while crossing this wilderness from up high!)

"A toy railway line meanders along, cut by tiny toy stations, but it is the funny camel carts and tikka pheris. I would like to watch from here.

Hyderabad.—Had he heard of this town with a singing name, Sindbad would have surely sailed up the Indus, to admire her inconquerable gods resting in golden shrines.

Jodhpur, in the province of Marwar, Rajputana. Lovely curios for sale at the aerodrome (the price being set by the Rajah, no time-wasting in bargaining). We purchase all the temple bells, and marble paper weights from Agra, set with cornaline.

"Come and see the citadel perched on those red rocks like an eagle," beckons one of the passengers. "What a pity we are not staying here for the night, as I did last time when flying with the Directors of Air-France."

3,000 MILES IN A DAY

I share his regrets, but promise myself to return to Jodhpur—per-meet with her equal when I take pockots but we were told that Rangoon: "If we could come down yesterday it had been, rainy and on the Shwedagon pagoda with a parachute, we might see the million pounds worth of diamonds lying in a golden egg on the topmost point; the stones were offered by rich and poor, when the pagoda was built. You see, this trip is replete with possibilities.

Slipping away over tributaries of the Ganges, watching dimly the oxen pulling water from wells, just as was done thousands of years ago.

The heat must be scorching in the plain below, as we approach the midday hour. Maekel! Wish we would stop at Gaya, and pay homage to Buddha's birthplace.

The trees of this beautiful rich alluvial plain, are they palms acacias, tamarinds, what spell had fallen on the City of Smiles? In spite of the pelting monsoon rain, we went on a pilgrimage to the Shwedagon Shrine, her golden dome a landmark from afar. The place was deserted, save for 3 bonzes in saffron robes!

As we returned, crestfallen, through the main artery, we were stopped by policemen at a barrier: there had been "trouble" to-day in town, Moslem shops looted because of a book written in Punjabi against the Buddhists, the government had closed markets and post-offices.

Do we realise we are flying this morning 3,000 m. high over the Burmese Ridge, above air pockets and teak forests that could supply the world for centuries to come? "One of the most impressive tracks of the whole route", we all agree. But the Bangkok aero-rome, 30 miles from town, does not even allow us a peep at the Venice of the East.

The arrival of Air-France at Saigon has become the social event of the week: I feel almost shy as we are welcomed by white uniforms with gold stripes, surrounded by the flower of elegance and shepherded to a spacious terrace for lunch! The other aerodrome had been so quiet in comparison!

There is no time for siesta to-day: the Route Mandarine, between the Annamite chain and the sea, is beckoning to us; wish we could alight at Touloupe.

FIRST FROM FRANCE

Hanoi aerodrome. "Are you a passenger en transit?" — "Very much so, unfortunately, since I must leave you at dawn to-morrow; but I feel like coming again very soon. — You are the first Hong Kong passenger from France, and we shall make special arrangements at the Hotel Metropole for you."

Over the Pont Doumer and the Red River to the best ordained of capitals, Mr. Pilot was radiant, he had practically caught up those 12 hours of delay, for we were only one hour late on schedule, on this 6 days' trip! We passengers were not so pressed with time, feeling perfectly acclimated to the high regions: now we had to contend with the heat, the bustle of the town and telephones.

But when we saw the crowd waiting for the air-mail delivery, the general animation because "Air-France est arrivé" when the cinema manager told us proudly: "Now Current events and film to-day, just arrived by air," I realised what new life we had brought to the exiles on our wings.

SEVENTH AND LAST DAY

"Tis a shame to leave such a room at a quarter of 6 in the morning! And this trip to Hong Kong, it is our last treat. . . .

Indeed, these 4 last hours were a glorious finish to our week's flight. I had often crossed the delta of the Red River by train or car, and had found it tedious and monotonous; but those red colours seen from up high!

The Bay of Halong with its 1000 islands? Kebao, where you can go tiger shooting, the Toad, the Cathedral, Napoléon's Hat, the Grotto of Marvels, the Cave of the Surprise, white walls, fishing sampans, (the result of a cataclysm that engulfed mountains and turned them into islets) all this just abides under us. Stella Benson was a great lover of the romantic bay.

No, there is no time for dozing this morning either: we shall make up for it in Hong Kong.

Familiar scenery as we approach our harbour: the Ladron (?) Islands stand up in all their beauty. Not a white wrinkled or brown of the sea! We could draw a map of this Kwangtung coast, so clearly it is outlined. On time once more; the large bird of prey circles lower and lower, before alighting.

Kai Tak, and such a warm hearty welcome from all!

The terrible gale which spread over England on October 4, caused heavy seas at Dover and ships were fighting to enter the harbour, at one time nearly submerged by the huge waves. (Air Mail).

Almost everyone suffers from Halitosis (bad breath) at some time or other, often unknown to him or her. It is a grievous social fault that people will not overlook. So, why risk unpopularity when it is so easy to remove all risk? Simply gargle twice a day with Listerine Antiseptic, full strength.

Listerine Antiseptic strikes at food fermentation, the cause of 90% of all bad breath, thus destroying objectionable mouth odors. It quickly places you on the safe side—the polite side. It has a pleasant taste and is absolutely safe to use.

This grim and sudden series of ultimatums, desperate appeals and mobilisations, interrupted by the Munich Agreement, was an exact repetition of July 1914. Nothing was lacking, not even the "scraps of paper!" Still, there was a difference. What was the force that held up war in extremis?

There is no intention of depressing the part played by the statesmen—those whose praises are at present being sung; but the force that held up war on the very verge of the abyss was that mysterious cohort—our dead of the Great War; it is in the memory of their sacrifice—a sacrifice which is sometimes queried as having been completely vain—that inspired the will of those who wished for peace, who willied peace not because they lacked courage, but because their unconquerable horror of war made them accept still more serious for the future with a full knowledge of facts. The leaders of those countries of Europe which are still free would better serve their States by ascribing the merits of the peace to the shades of their dead rather than to their own prudence. In diplomatic parlance, the word prudence flies from the National Socialist has several less glorious regime. This unfortunate mass synonymous; whilst no one in the of men, women and children—to world would dare to deny the thought—will constitute more than union with Germany, because they one million of optimists for a feared competition on the part of Europe and the useless humiliation of Cardinal Innitzer at Vienna; finally, there are all the Jews who will be protected by their mountains. This time the Czechs are beginning their age-old fight for life, but without frontiers and against a German people a thousand times more aggressive, convinced as it is of its quasi-divine mission. In other days, German intellectual circles contributed to the contemptuous views held of the Czechs, foremost Karl Marx

Mommsen, the historian of Rome,

when he writes: the hard Czech skulls must be broken with trun-cheons. Those who, like myself, have listened to the extraordinary ferment of hatred which

Hitler has poured into the hearts of millions of Germans, cannot but tremble for this people, if it's only defence against the enormous

mass of Germans lies in "diplomatic guarantees" of which it is able to appreciate the value.

SALVAGE-MASTER WINS BIG SWEEP RACE

Kowloon Cricket Club Fail Again

Ride Scores 61 In Sound Innings

Longfield Will Prove Big Asset To The Club

HONG Kong Cricket Club gained a moral victory over their Kowloon rivals yesterday at H.K.C.C., the mainlanders, with one wicket to fall, being 87 runs in arrears when stumps were drawn. The match was featured by sound batting by L. T. Ride, who hit nine boundaries in his 61, scored out of 126, a patient innings of 46, scored out of 85, by F. H. Stokes, who hit two sixes and a four, accurate bowling by R. E. Lee, who at one period took 3 wickets for 16 runs, and a brilliant slip catch by H. Owen-Hughes to dismiss D. J. N. Anderson.

Club will be strong contenders for the premier league championship. In G. Longfield they have a really fast bowler who is fast finding his length, while he is no novice with the bat and can field brilliantly in any position. In addition to him there is J. B. H. Leckie, one of the finest all-rounders in the Colony, providing he is here for the opening of the League in January, and Atee Pearce.

K.C.C., without G. L. O'Brien, who took A. C. Beck's place in the Club side, and N. A. E. Mackay, cut a sorry picture yesterday, both in the field and when batting. A. Dand, the reserve wicket-keeper, injured his hand and had to retire. F. A. Broadbridge taking his place behind the stumps. It was a sporting gesture on Owen-Hughes' part in allowing the match to be drawn when one batsman remained to be bowled in his over. Bad light and the fact that Dand, the last man in, was injured were responsible for his decision.

SAINTS LOSE TO C.B.A. IN LADIES' HOCKEY

A "hat trick" by Mrs. M. White enabled Central British Association to beat St. Andrew's Ladies in a friendly hockey game at King's Park yesterday by 4 goals to 2, though on the general run of the play a draw would have been more equitable.

The Saints had numerous chances to score in the first half but failed to do so when in the circle. C.B.A. were well led by Mrs. White, and with Miss A. Booker and Miss J. Stoker they had a dangerous trio. Mrs. White's first goal was the result of some neat passing, but her other two were individual efforts and might have been saved by Miss J. Stoker, the opposing goalkeeper.

C.B.A. starved their right-winger for the greater part of the game, and it was only in the closing minutes of the game that Miss Ewing was given the ball.

Miss Stoker worked hard in the Saints' attack, and Miss A. Grieron again showed up well.

The C.B.A. scored first through Mrs. White in the second half, and Miss M. Booker placed them further ahead. Miss Grieron then reduced the lead, but C.B.A. went further ahead through two goals by Mrs. White. Miss Grieron again scoring for Saints.

St. Andrew's Ladies:—Miss J. Hall; Miss G. White and Miss J. Nora Broadbridge; Miss A. J. Petigura and Miss H. Reid; Miss F. Wong, Miss M. Churn, Miss P. Grieron, Miss A. Grieron and Miss H. Drew.

C.B.A.:—Miss D. Moss; Miss P. Whitey and Miss P. Everett; E. Clever, Miss I. Woolley, and Miss J. Booker; Miss J. Ewing; Miss M. J. Booker; Mrs. M. White; Mrs. B. Stoker and Miss D. Hart.

FIVE FOR MISS SMITH

"Y" Ladies defeated Central British School girls by five clear goals, scored by Miss M. Smith, in a friendly hockey game at King's Park yesterday.

Miss M. McCaw and Miss E. MacKelvie, were the outstanding players for the school.

The "Y" made changes after the interval.

SAINTS' JUNIORS WIN

The St. Andrew's Juniors defeated the Central British Association Juniors by a goal scored in the second half by Miss M. Churn.

The C.B.A. were assisted by Miss P. Everett and Miss D. Moss, who had played for the seniors in the previous game, and the former, together with Miss P. Medley, were greatly responsible for saving their team from a bigger defeat.

St. Andrew's was the outstanding line forward in the C.B.A. attack, but Miss M. Churn a tough opposition.

In the Saints' forward line Miss E. Churn was dangerous, while Miss Y. Ho was also prominent throughout the game, both in attack and defense.

St. Andrew's:—Miss A. Sullivan, Miss E. Churn and Miss C. Shand.

Miss M. Venona, Miss M. da Rosa and Miss P. Jeffreys; Miss K. Ho, Miss Y. Ho, Miss M. Churn, Miss S. Roberts and Miss Jex.

C.B.A.:—Miss P. Macfadyen; Miss P. Medley and Miss P. Everett; Miss D. Moss; Miss Lathaveth and Miss C. Bone; Miss M. Macalpine; Miss N. Duckworth; Miss E. Wooley; Miss W. Beaumont and Miss E. Hunt.

Y.M.C.A. BEAT RADIO

Radio Sports Club were defeated by Y.M.C.A. by three clear goals in a friendly hockey game at King's Park yesterday, and but for the hard work put in by Guest, at right-back, and Hassan, at centre-half, would have suffered a greater defeat.

The "Y" forward line displayed good combination and were backed up by a strong intermediate line in which Dawson shone.

Bartlett scored for the "Y" in the first half and in the second period placed his side further ahead; Rose scored the other goal.

Radio Sports Club:—Lim; A. E. P. Guest and J. S. Grown; L. H. Kitchell, M. H. Hassan and Mohinder Singh; W. J. Robinson, Avtar Singh, Pyara Singh, Dunc, and Jangir Singh.

Y.M.C.A.:—Bennell; Starbuck and Taylor; Kompton, Dawson and Austin; Jenkins, Bartlett, Kraus, Rose and Banks.

H.K. LADIES' PRACTICE

Hong Kong Ladies held an intra-Club practice yesterday at the Valley, when members of the first and second elevens were on view. New-comers were Miss Hutchinson, a full-back, who should find her place in the first team, while Miss B. Par-

Lopes Saves Game For Northerners After Late Local Revival

(By "SKIP")

SHANGHAI worthily won the last of the lawn bowls Interport matches by 3 shots at Club de Recreio yesterday, the match being attended by H.E. Sir Geoffrey and Lady Northcote, and a crowd of some 200 persons.

Shanghai have thus won two of the Interport games, the first match ending in a tie.

The first two local men were disappointing, but C. G. Silva was very good if lucky. Omar did many brilliant things and was the best of our side. It was not his fault we lost.

Of the visitors Swartzell and Wallace impressed most, especially the latter, who was simply great. Lopes was casual in many of his shots, and Gutierrez was not nearly up to the form he showed last Wednesday.

The teams played as arranged, and a good encounter was witnessed.

As late as the 15th head it looked as if Hong Kong team was to be annihilated, for Shanghai then led by no less than 19 to 6.

Local revival then became evident and when the last head was to be played we were only two in arrears.

Time and space do not allow a full description of the game, but one or two heads which were outstanding need description.

Hong Kong opened the scoring as a result of a fine shot by Omar, who out-drew the opposing skip after that player had drawn his shot amid applause.

Immediately afterwards, Wallace scored his by removing Hong Kong's only dead wood; a perfect drive, though he had nothing to lose.

Shanghai then led by 19 to 6.

KOWLOON DEFEATED BY THREE CLEAR GOALS BY ST. JOSEPH'S

League Champions Fully Extended

MIDDLESEX WIN BUT ARE UNIMPRESSIVE: SCOTS AT THEIR BEST

ORDNANCE GIVEN FRIGHT

SOUTH CHINA "B," League Champions for the past two seasons, were fully extended by Club yesterday in the Senior Football League, only a lack of accuracy in front of goal robbing the losers of a deserved point. Middlesex, though they beat Kwong Wah by two clear goals, were unimpressive, especially at forward. Royal Scots, on the other hand, revealed their best form to beat the Police by the odd goal in five, and are now on level terms with Kowloon and Eastern.

The Ordnance Corps were given a fright by Club juniors and can consider themselves lucky to have recorded their fourth consecutive win.

FIRST DIVISION

CLUB 1 - S. CHINA "B" 2 - SOUTH CHINA "B" League champions, were fully extended by Club in their clash on the latter's ground, winning by the narrow margin of 2 goals to 1. A little more cohesion between the Club forwards might easily have meant a division of the spoils.

Club wasted no time with frills but played a straightforward game well within their capacity, and in front of goal, always appeared dangerous because of their willingness to shoot at the slightest opportunity. The Chinese, as usual, played quite prettily to watch at times, but not exactly calculated to achieve great things against such staunch backs as Syd. Strange and Nosack, the former coming off easily beat in his duel with Young Shui-ick, but was being particularly efficient with his placing of the ball when clearing.

Lam Tak-po had a hard job looking after Fowler, who was in one of his most hustling moods. Blackford put in some nice touches, and gave E. Strange, his half-back, very valuable assistance. Pile, on the extreme left, crossed the ball well, though good covering on the part of the Chinese backs, prevented his efforts from going further. Tam Kwan-kwan was his usual superb cool self in goal, holding high contres with perfect ease, and taking the ball from Fowler's head on more than one occasion.

At Shuey-koek and Lee Shek-yau formed the most progressive wing, showing perfect understanding in their passing movements, while Lau Ching-ang, leading the attack, combined well with his line, and gave Butpin, the Club pivot, an anxious time.

Following a hot attack by Club, a neat clearance by Leung Pak-wai placed the right wing in possession and a perfect movement resulted in the ball being crossed to Au Shek-koek for a simple goal. After an interval Pile took advantage of a defensive lapse to step in with a powerful low drive which struck the inside of the far post, before entering the net. Lee Shek-yau then round off this movement with a shot that simply ripped its way into the goal.

Proctor, especially in the second half, was outstanding, and the manner in which he broke up many of the Police attacks was most well, but, with the exception of Hong and Allan, the forwards left much to be desired. Heslop played a brilliant game, always worrying the Police defence, scoring one goal and having a hand in the other two.

The Police played well in the first half and at one time they looked as if they would share the points.

On the resumption Howett changed places with Watt, and from then onwards the forwards could not seem to get into action. Done was positively brilliant in goal and his methods were unorthodox, they were most effective. On numerous occasions he alone stood between the Sents' forwards and yet effected clearances.

Allan opened the scoring for the Scots, but Ferrier soon equalised.

In the second half the Scots piled on the pressure and were rewarded by goals from Mackay and Nosack, but three minutes from time Moss broke through to reduce the arrears.

Lam Tak-po had a hard job looking after Fowler, who was in one of his most hustling moods. Blackford put in some nice touches, and gave E. Strange, his half-back, very valuable assistance. Pile, on the extreme left, crossed the ball well, though good covering on the part of the Chinese backs, prevented his efforts from going further. Tam Kwan-kwan was his usual superb cool self in goal, holding high conceps and also ably supported his wing forwards. Bright, the pivot, performed admirably as a stopper, but his final placements were very weak on occasion. Courtney was the pick of the forwards.

Kwong Wah played very well and with a little more confidence and steadiness in front of goal might have pulled the game out of the fire. In the second half, Wong Kung-cheung, on the left wing, burst through on numerous occasions and sent across some nice passes, but they were more often than not haphazard. Lee Fook-chuen was a very clever inside man, but the defence was the strongest part of the team. Lee Kwok-keo was a very safe and confident keeper and could not be blamed for the goals, whilst Hon Yung-sang and Chung Fal-lan defended stoutly, especially the former, whose first-time kicking was a feature of the game.

Within 5 minutes Tait sent the soldiers ahead, and after the interval they went further ahead through Pearson.

ROYAL SCOTS 3 - POLICE 2 - At Sookunpo, Royal Scots defeated Police by the odd goal in five.

The soldiers were worthy winners and beat the brilliant work of the Police custodian, the score would have been much greater.

Police in goal was not overworked and anything that came his way he dealt with confidently. Fraser and McDonald played a sound game and their marking and tackling was good. The half-backs played very well and their constructive work was good. Proctor, especially in the second half, was outstanding, and the manner in which he broke up many of the Police attacks was most well, but, with the exception of Hong and Allan, the forwards left much to be desired. Ordnance very nearly received a rude shock on the Club ground, being in arrears twice during the game and being really rather fortunate to receive full points by the odd goal in five.

Without the services of Duffield, Ordnance attack lacked sting, while the speed of the Club wingers was utilized to advantage by the home side, who won the ball about very effectively while the Club halves, particularly Carr, displayed great energy in remedying the many mistakes made.

Fleming, Club's goal-keeper, also gave a really fine exhibition. For the Ordnance, Munton and Emberton were prominent, and Scadding, after moving to inside-left, showed a ready foot, registering twice in the second half.

Klovsky provided Wilson with a simple goal, but Attoe soon levelled with the scores, only for the Club's left-half to regain the lead. After the interval Scadding snapped up a

Thomas, left-winger, was the pick of the line.

For Kwong Wah, Lam Ching-fong, the goal-keeper, played exceptionally well under the circumstances, while Lo Shu-kar was a hard-working back.

Devonshire scored twice in the first half, but after the interval Kwong Wah broke away and Leung Bing-kam netted. From the kick-off the Middlesex swept down the field and Simmonds scored. During another Middlesex attack Moggeridge crossed the ball and glanced at Cheung Wai-shue into the net. Further Middlesex goals were netted by Thomas (2), Devonshire and Simmonds, while Leung Bing-kam scored for Kwong Wah.

ROYAL SCOTS 2 - POLICE 0 - At K.F.C., Middlesex proved far superior to Kwong Wah and registered an easy victory by 8 goals to 2.

Had the Middlesex forwards taken all the chances that came their way an cricket score might have resulted.

Thompson and Collier played right on top of the Kwong Wah forwards and gave very little away. In the half back line R. Thomas was outstanding. The forwards, although they scored eight goals, were very disorganized as they were slow to take their opportunities. The goals they did get were mostly simple ones.

ROYAL SCOTS 2 - POLICE 0 -

In their encounter at Sookunpo against Police, Royal Scots came out worthy winners by two clear goals. This score by no means indicates the superiority of the soldiers, but rather pays tribute to the heroic work put in by the Police defence. Contrary to acknowledged styles, the Scots' forwards opened up the game with long swinging passes, whereas the Chinese indulged in close passing. The Police were never at any time impressive and the forwards lacked dash.

The soldiers' half-back trio dominated the play and gave the opposing forwards little or no rope at all, the constructive play of Pluckrose and Fraser being delightful to watch. The forwards played well together, but their shooting on the whole was bad. Only McDonald and Willmott scored to support the front line.

"This dinner marks the official termination of the lawn bowls season in Hong Kong, which again has been a most successful one. Before I touch on matters appertaining to the League and Open Competitions, I should like to say a few words about the Shanghai bowlers and the Interport Matches.

"Last year we were all very disappointed that Shanghai did not send a team to Hong Kong. This year they have done so.

"Sixer Osborne was the best player on the field, and Easton, Hudson and McLaughlin had a First Division standing in the forward line and should score many goals this season.

Rushed off to hospital with GASTRIC ULCER

But operation was avoided after all

Serious stomach trouble which may lead to the operating table does not appear without warning. It begins with discomfort, then comes on with increasing pain, then brings the sufferer to a condition of intolerable agony from which only desperate measures seem to offer escape.

Even when matters have developed to that terrible stage

Maclean Brand Stomach Powder brings relief

as is shown by Mr. Kelsey's letter printed on the right.

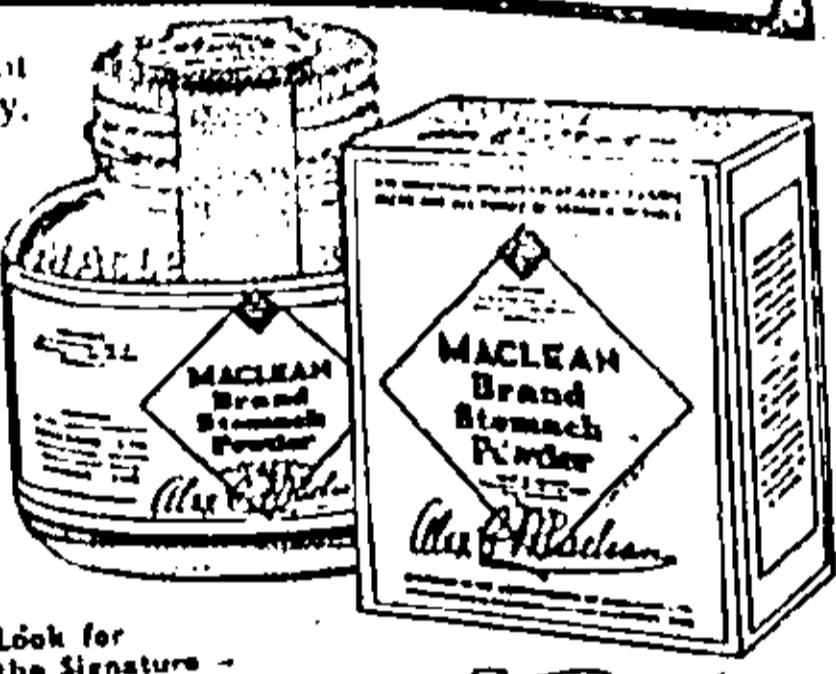

Stomach trouble should be treated early — when the "wind" in the stomach, the niggling pains of indigestion, palpitation or acidity let you know that you need the soothing, healing influence of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. There are many sufferers, like Mr. Kelsey, who have been saved from dreaded operations through this famous remedy which goes to the root of stomach trouble and gets rid of it quickly.

Can eat anything without discomfort

"I am sending you this letter so that you can tell other sufferers what a great gift Maclean Brand Stomach Powder is to those suffering from the genuine Maclean Brand.

Six months ago I was taken very ill with great deal, had to be rushed off to hospital where it was found I had gastric ulcer. I was very ill for six weeks, but thanks to the kindness saved without an operation by your Powder, and I am now working again and can eat anything without discomfort."

How Very Funny

"IT'S going to be such fun," gurgled a voice over the telephone. "We all meet at my house at eight o'clock and everybody has got to be dressed as a child. Do come, won't you? I'm sure you'd look divine in rompers."

Sadly I replaced the receiver and ruminated on life. Here, in this year of grace, was a woman of mature years, the mother of two children, inviting me to attend a party of presumed adults, every one of which was to render himself or herself even more ridiculous than Nature had intended by dressing in the clothes of an infant.

Even allowing that their mentality as what it is, they should at least dress in pinuppers and knickers, but no, nothing would but bibs, babies' robes and rompers. And for what reason in the name of all that is unreasonable? What benefit do seemingly normal adults extract from behaving like morons? Or are they morons in deed and in fact?

It's going to be such fun, foooth! About as funny as those degrading scavenger parties at which every member is in duty bound to harass as many innocent gers and when you have finished eating it, well, what did your nanny put your bib on for? Gosh!

Of course, there are going to be lovely, squashy jellies, so that we can throw them at each other, and a gorgeous high chair in which to sit the naughtiest boy or girl as a punishment. The naughty child in this case being the one who grows a bit sick of the whole business, and refuses to behave like a Yahoo, or so it seems to me.

Oh, I almost forgot, there will be delightful wiggly sardines, which must be eaten out of the tins, also with fingers only, and lots and lots of beer, for which a brand new feeding bottle has been supplied for every little visitor.

I referred to this imbecility as typifying clean, youthful fun. That, if I may say so, was "writ sarcastic." But the fact remains, many people who should know better excuse these inanities on the score of the youth of those engaged. Personally, I fail to understand this attitude. If the participants were really young there would be nothing to comment about; it is the prerogative of youth to behave boisterously, but it must be youth, not men and women in the middle 'twenties and older.

At the age of twenty-four Napoleon had quite a number of important battles to his credit. At the same age Pitt the younger had been Prime Minister of England for close on three years. Scores and scores of men had fought through three or four campaigns in the Great War long before they had reached the "youthful" age of twenty-four. Tens of thousands more were already dead to no useful as a baby, but the endeavour to make the world fit place for entertainment, as I understand it, is planned on the most daring scale. The foregoing must suffice, because I want to get back to the party they had reached the "youthful" age of twenty-four. Tens of thousands more were already dead to no useful as a baby, but the endeavour to make the world fit place for entertainment, as I understand it, is planned on the most daring scale. These "youth-fun" party heroes who just imagine it, the reflection is followed them. And none of those taking the form of real kippers! Ah, well. The party I am no' for supper, for all the world like

Can you beat that? Actual kippers! Ah, well. The party I am no' attending comes off this week. I am sure I hope it will be an enormous success; everybody is working so terribly hard to that

And here's another thing. When the kippers are ready to be end, and some of the girls are brought in nobody will be allowed actually learning which end of a needle is pierced for threading each of the mighty-brained, infant-attired members of supposedly you want to make clothes for a sane society will be expected to baby. That'll give you some idea sit on the floor. There's darling of the seriousness with which for you. And there are not going really think people approach their to be any knives and forks either. play.

Compensation For A Lost Slam

When playing rubber bridge, if your opponent gets into a horrible contract and [to use the current highly expressive vulgarism] "has his brains beaten out" to the tune of about 1,000 points, it is not very important to reflect that you could have thrashed him for an additional 200 points. Only an artistic, or very greedy, player bothers about such trifles. In duplicate, however, it is an entirely different matter. If your opponents save, and you see that you either could have or would have bid and made a slam, you must point every effort toward winning more points than the slam would have returned. It is fatal to relax merely because flocks and flocks of tricks are falling into your lap.

North, dealer. Neither side vulnerable. Match-point duplicate.

North's opening bid, obviously, was a psychic. Although I do not approve of such tactics except on the rarest occasions, I admit freely that psychic bidding is a great deal safer and, therefore, more undoing. To ruff with an honour logical at match-point, duplicate would establish West's guarded hand. It is in total point games, ten; to ruff low would be to concede an overruff on the spot.

THE CLOCK FOR EVERY ROOM IN THE HOUSE

BIG BEN

Of course, Big Ben gets you up on time. That's his job and he does it faithfully year in and year out.

But Big Ben is more than just a clock. He's something beautiful to own—smart design harmonizes with any decorative scheme.

25 years of faithful service have made Big Ben the alarm clock the world trusts. His call is reliable. His precision-construction lengthens his life. His case is dust-proof.

Light sleepers like the quiet tick and two-voice alarm of Big Ben Chime Alarm. But heavy sleepers need the booming intermittent call of Big Ben Loud Alarm. All good stores carry Big Ben and many other famous Westclox alarm clocks and watches.

FRANCE FEARS COMPLICATIONS FROM CANTON'S FALL

FRANCE AND REICH: HANDS ACROSS BORDER

Paris, Yesterday.

The newspapers are discussing reports that France and Germany may shortly make a joint declaration of peace similar to the Hitler-Chamberlain declaration.

Madame Tabouis, writing in "Oeuvre," says that there is a tendency both in Paris and Berlin towards a Franco-German arrangement such as a peace declaration if not a settlement.

The newspaper "L'Ordre" suggests that this will take the form of a unilateral declaration by Hitler, rather than a declaration of the Munich kind, in which Hitler would agree never to settle Franco-German differences other than by peaceful means.—Reuter.

Shanghai, Yesterday. Mr. Katsuo Ozazaki, who until recently had acted as liaison officer between the Japanese Consul-General in Shanghai and the Japanese army and navy authorities, left by plane for Formosa to-day preparatory to reopening the Japanese Consulate-General in Canton. — Reuter.

Mr. Katsuo Ozazaki, who until recently had acted as liaison officer between the Japanese Consul-General in Shanghai and the Japanese army and navy authorities, left by plane for Formosa to-day preparatory to reopening the Japanese Consulate-General in Canton. — Reuter.

PEACE FEELER NOT SERIOUSLY REGARDED IN LONDON QUARTERS

London, Yesterday. Chinese officials in London point out that Mr. Wang Ching-wei's statement to Reuter at Chungking that China might accept Japanese terms if they do not hamper the Chinese national existence, is nothing new, as statements to the same effect have frequently been made.

TENSION IN MEMEL

Memel, Yesterday. Renewed tension has been caused in Memel owing to the Lithuanian Government vetoing two laws which were presented by the Memel Diet.

Passing of the laws would prevent Lithuanian workmen entering Memel to seek work.

Tension has also been aggravated by the new Public Security Bill, but the Lithuanian Government has agreed to modify part of the Bill to meet the Diet's wishes. — Reuter.

CZECHS REDUCING SIZE OF ARMY

Prague, Yesterday. The Czechoslovak Government is taking measures to reduce the size of the Army, and by virtue of the National Defence Law has issued a decree putting professional soldiers on a similar basis to persons in civil service, namely retirement on a retaining allowance.

This means that trained soldiers technically remain actively attached to the army but are at liberty to return to civil occupations with enjoyment of the equivalent of pension. — Trans-Ocean.

"England Once Again Receives Severe Blow"

Paris, Yesterday.

"Entry of the Japanese into Canton is a fact of extraordinary wide significance, not only for the future of China but likewise for the interests of all those Powers who have possessions in the Far East, in the last analysis also for the equilibrium of influence exercised by all states of the world," writes the newspaper "Figaro" to-day concerning the capture of Canton by the Japanese.

Once again England has received a severe blow, continues "Figaro." For England, the capture of Canton by Japan, coming after the destruction of Shanghai, is another very hard test.

The capture of Canton represents a real commercial disaster. It means a loss of prestige that will be felt as far away as India.

The Japanese, however, will from now onwards be in contact with the French zone of influence in Yunnan also.

Through the capture of Canton the question of the French rail-

Restoration of the Hongkew and Yangtzeou districts in Shanghai to the authority of the International Settlement.

Freedom to navigate the Yangtze.

Payment of bond interest, and freedom of access to the British staff and other legal rights now denied in connection with British constructed railways, notably the Shanghai-Nanking and Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo railways.

General Hata added: "As a matter of principle, we intend to respect scrupulously the rights and interests of third party powers. Those interfered with because of military necessity will gradually be restored."

Asked whether foreigners who evacuated Hankow would have difficulties placed in their way when they desired to return after the Japanese occupation, General Hata declared: "That depends entirely on the military situation."

In reply to a question whether the Japanese would respect the special administrative rights secured by Britain by treaty with China in connection with the British Concession at Hankow, General Hata stated: "We shall respect vested rights of third party powers so long as they are recognized by the Japanese Government."

General Hata concluded: "With regard to British grievances, I privately feel disappointed in that I am convinced that they arise from a lack of appreciation of conditions prevailing in the zone of hostilities." — Reuter.

JAPANESE ALLEGED YU HAN-MOU RATTED

Tokyo, Yesterday. Now that the Japanese General Staff in Canton has cut the main Chinese line of supply, it is not to be expected that the line of communication from Tongking to Yunnan will be left undisturbed.

Japan has already dealt this traffic route numerous blows but what will happen now that China possesses only this line of communication alone with the outside world, asks "Le Journal" in conclusion.—Trans-Ocean.

BRITAIN'S POWER Paris, Yesterday.

The fall of Canton is the subject of widespread comment in the Paris press.

"Le Jour," alluding to the relative proximity of the Japanese forces to Hong Kong and Tongkin, says that nevertheless Tongkin is French and Hong Kong British and in the face of such a situation the only thing possible is to limit destruction.

The situation cannot be saved by thunders by the League, but Britain can do much by negotiation.

Even if the United States maintains a passive attitude, Britain can state her case and make it prevail on the condition that she has her hands freed in

The Secret of Success!

The reflex image of the Rolleicord is a distance-meter, frame-finder and contact-tester combined. As if it were a built-in photo guide, the image of the ground glass screen points out to you the pictorial merit of a picture and prevents you from wasting your film.

The fader-lens is of wider aperture than the taking-lens and thus gives you considerable latitude. Your exposures will invariably be sharp and suitable for enlargement even if the focusing did not happen to be dead accurate.

This explains the wonderful successes achieved by Rolleicord Amateurs.

WOMEN Are SAVAGES

MAN, throughout the Ages, has always considered himself both a product and an agent of Civilisation. The first grinders of stone no doubt thought contemptuously of their barbarous ancestors, who only chipped it; and every triumph of inventive genius from the loom to the wireless set has evoked similar panaceas of self-congratulation.

Woman, until very recent times, covered in her cave or lolled in her harem, pined in her castle or willed in her boudoir, without seeming to take very much inter-if woman is ever really civilised at all. She may be gowned by X, manicured by Y, perfumed by Z; it is yet possible that the A B C of Civilisation escapes her.

For Civilisation consists not in the delicacy of underwear, nor even in the reading of the latest novels, nor in knowing a Picasso when you see it, nor in being able to tell a real pearl from an imitation, in artificial light, at the other end of a ballroom.

Even the profoundest culture (and how often are the profoundly cultured to be met with?) is not the same thing as Civilisation.

I can hear the chorus of feminine voices rising in angry protest. "Well, what is it then?" they cry from the confines of Chelsea and the borders of Bloomsbury. "What is it, if it is not ours?"

Patience, ladies! Civilisation may not exist much longer to upbraid you, and I, for one, am far from wishing you other than you are. Yet Civilisation is largely a matter of being a citizen, and if you think such a dictum too dull to be borne, I am quite ready to agree with you. Can you sit on a hundred committees and yet believe in Democracy? Can you admire the writings of anyone you personally dislike? Can you preach toleration when you are in a majority, and respect the Voice of the People when you are outvoted? Have you any reverence for law, except as a weapon, or any interest in religion except as a personal consolation? Have you any team-spirit, or any esprit-de-corps even among yourselves?

At the risk of being torn in pieces by the fury of the Maenads, I venture to suggest (as we say in our well-mannered male assemblies) that you have none of these things. You have, indeed, every excuse. Why should you respect the laws which man has made to keep you in bondage? And why should you care for the political ideals in which Man himself is ceasing to believe?

est in that august procession which is known as the March of Progress.

In the Anglo-Saxon countries, at least, all this is now changed. America, where Feminism has won its most startling triumphs, sends over every year to Europe its shiploads of simple men and complicated women, and every one of the women regards herself as Civilisation's choicest fruit, if not indeed as its only justification.

In England women have not such an obvious superiority in culture, partly because they still think it part of a wife's duty to look after her husband. The French woman is content to be sophisticated instead of civilised; and the German woman's culture is a reflection of her husband's, not a reflection on it.

But those of us who have not spent the entire period of our adult lives in a monastery may perhaps be pardoned if we sometimes catch ourselves wondering

We can have a pack of dogs and a team of men, but not a pack of cats nor a team of women. For woman is an individualist, and if she sacrifices her individual will, as she so frequently does, it is to one man and not to any abstraction such as the team-spirit. Not for her the selfless devotion to a Cause. When she thinks she is devoted to a Cause, she is really devoted to the person of a Leader. The old cynamism of cherchez la femme in order to understand men's motives would be much truer if it were reversed. Cherchez l'homme, if you would understand the actions of women. For them every relationship is a personal relationship, and this is the clue which will lead into the labyrinth of the feminine nature.

NEXT MONTH'S SUBJECT:
"ARCHITECTURE"

"CLOUDS IN PORT SHELTER" by L. Thorne.

By "Shutter"

PERHAPS a very full week had something to do with it, for I found Mr. Witschlebe's "Surf" very restful and attractive. It reminded me of one of those days "when there is an invitation in the air and a promise of gifts around".

The chief merit of course, is the presentation of an uncommon cloud formation and the photographer is to be congratulated on his luck in having his camera with him when presented with such an opportunity. Much of the delicacy of the original will, unfortunately, be lost in reproduction for the printed page, but this is unavoidable. A slightly stronger rendering of the sky would have helped to counteract the assertiveness of the foreground, which in this instance is inclined to absorb too much of the limelight. The cloud arrangement however remains the most attractive feature and I think the mood of the picture is readily intelligible and the intention well conveyed.

Another picture by the same entrant, representing a variation of this theme was also very attractive but the foreground was rather dull and uninviting.

In some contrast to this effort is Mr. Connor's "Night's Tentacles" which is an arresting and interesting print. There are, however, many points for criticism and I am sure the possibilities in this subject have not all been fully brought out.

Some suggestion of over-printing has helped destroy many delicate shadings and varied arrangements of graduated tone which the subject must have possessed. It is in these, just as much as in the configuration, that the beauty of cloud pictures consists. It is unfortunate also that everything seems to be designed to lead the eye to the centre of the interest and then out of the picture. To me the desire to know more of what is not seen is very strong, and although it is difficult to say what should have been done without the negative in front of me, I feel that restraint with the trimming is indicated. The black mass on the right is disturbing and the trimming could have been more usefully employed here; while the junk in the path of sunlight helps restore the balance, it is not large enough to be fully compensating. Although all these factors considerably diminish the appeal, the effort is a very good one nevertheless.

Mr. Thorne's "Clouds in Port Shelter" have been fairly well caught but the composition could have been improved by better placing of the main subject and the foreground is dull and rather uninteresting. Here also an examination of the negative would be useful in finding the fault.

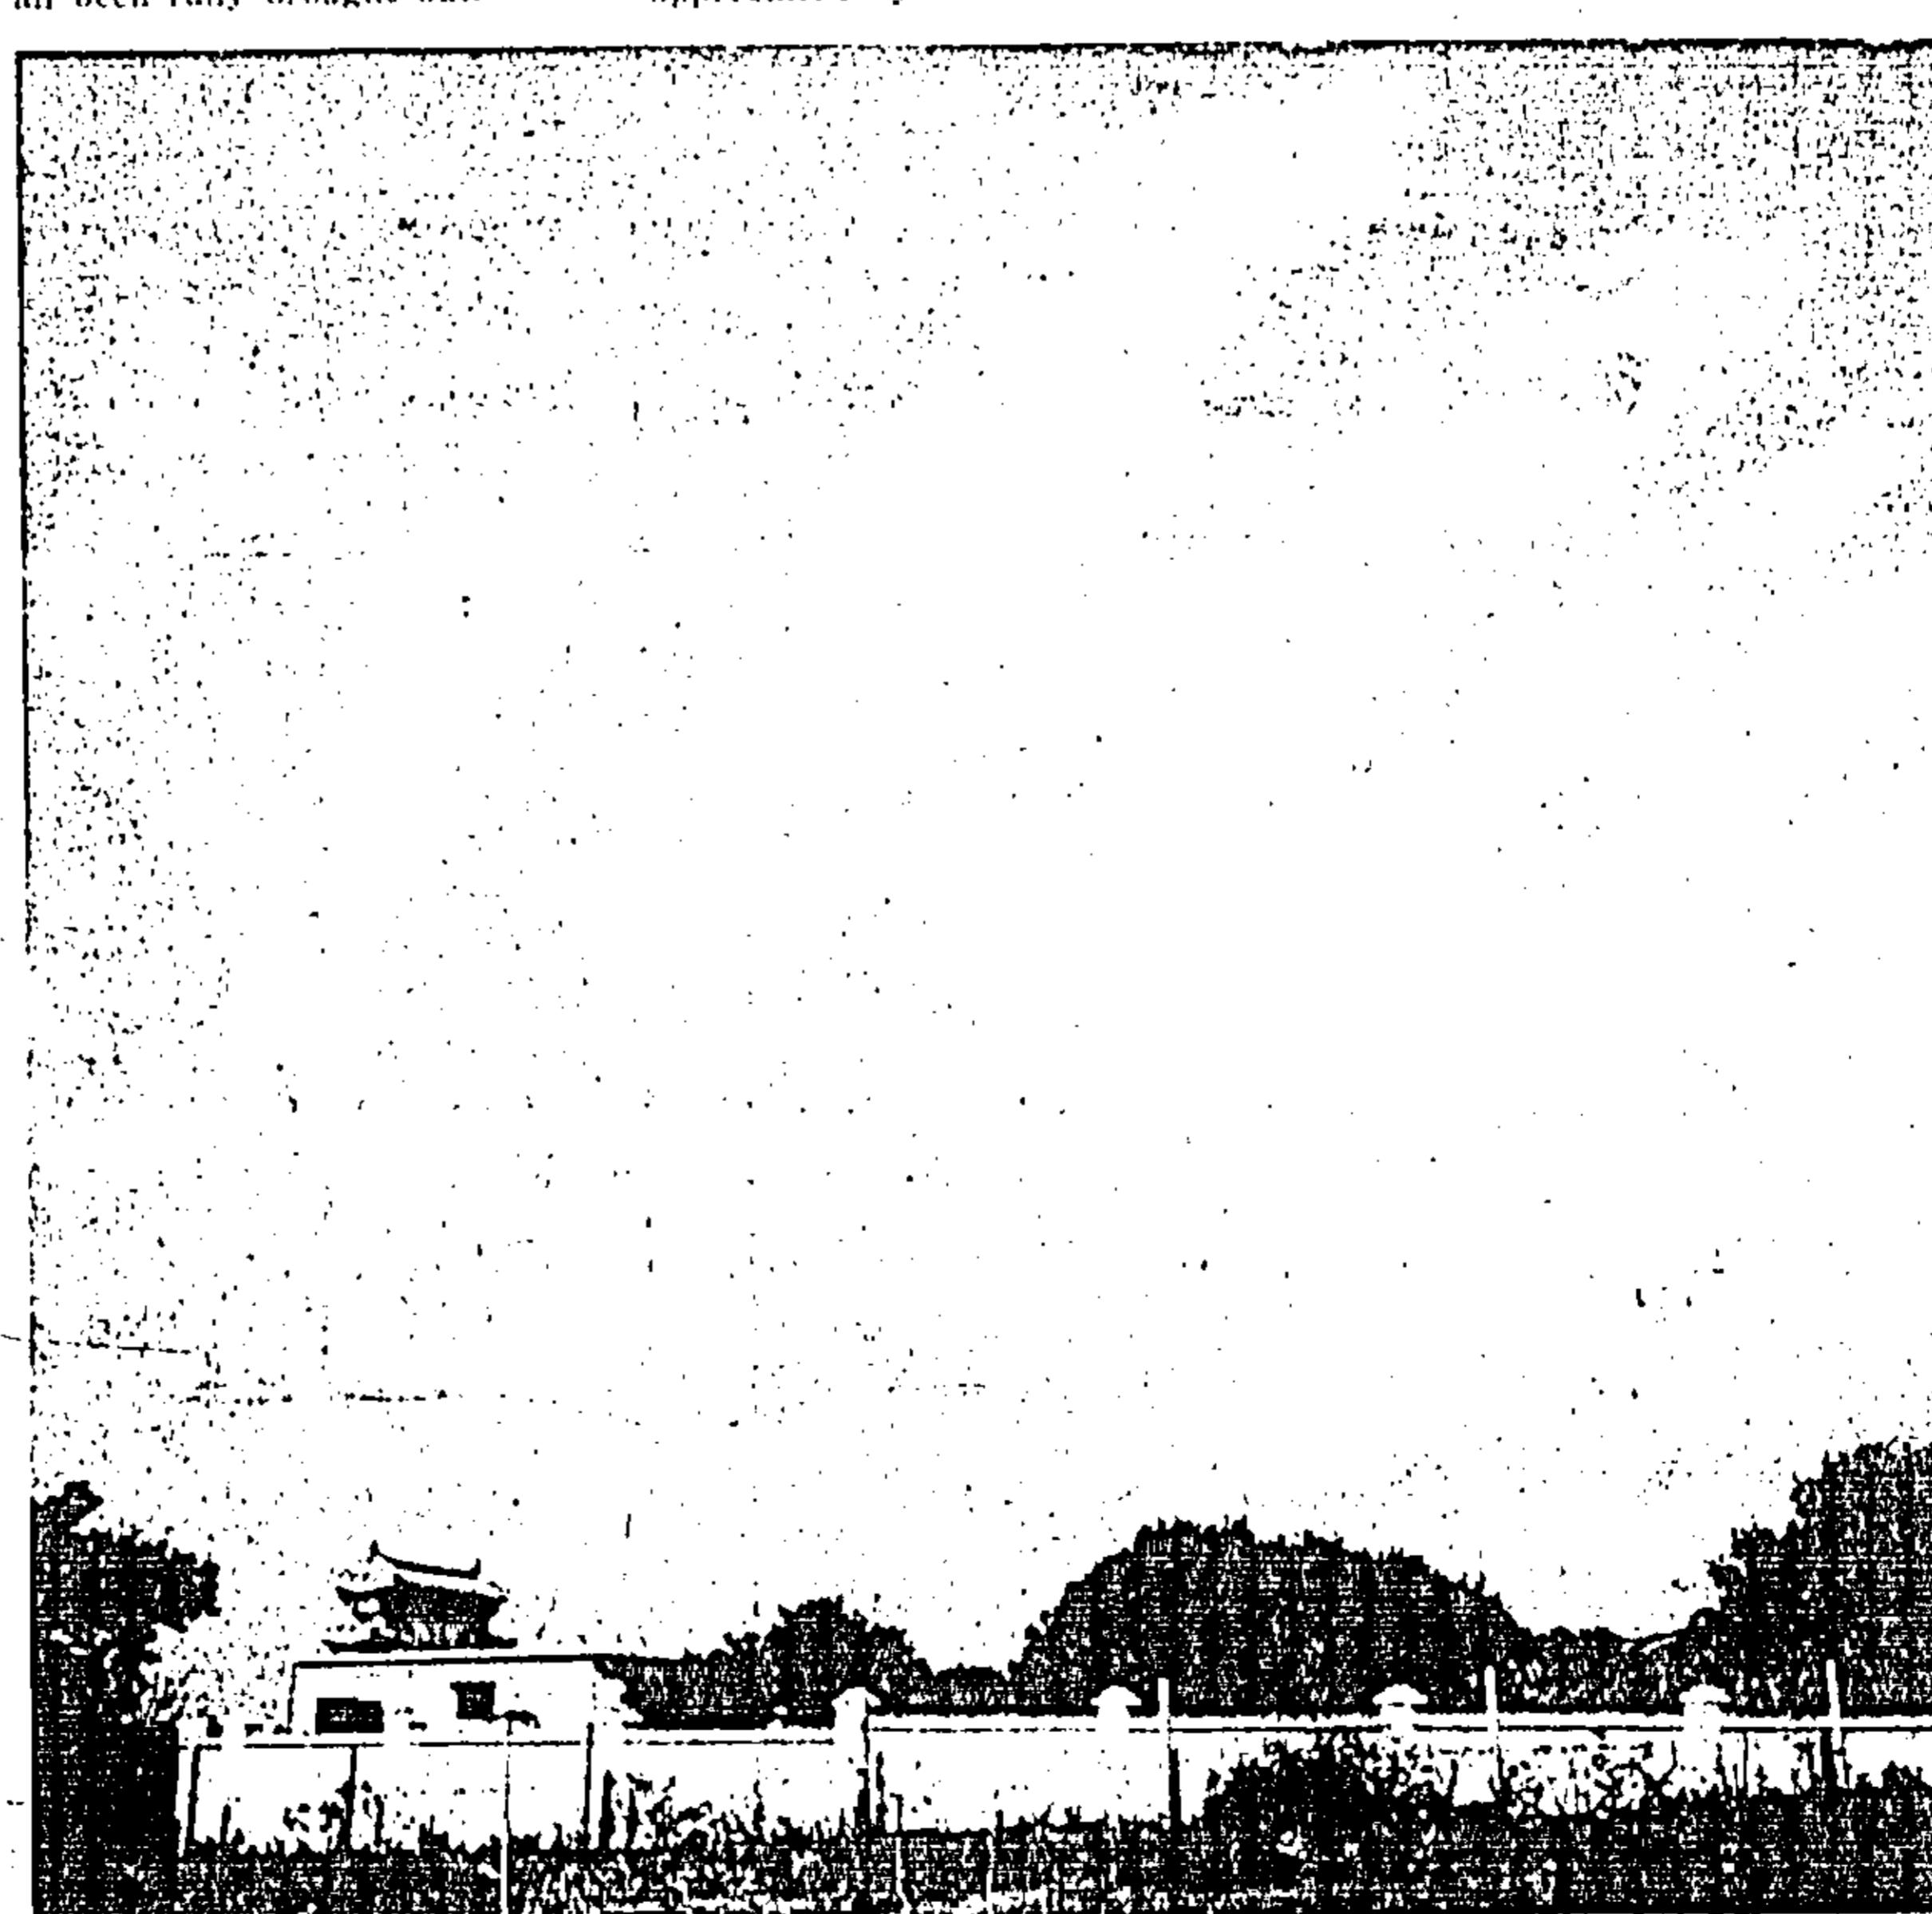

This being the second last Sunday in the month, it is time to announce the November competition subject which will be "Architecture," of which more next week. Once more the early receipt of entries will be much appreciated by "Shutter".

such beautiful HAIR

Hair styles of today make care-ful washing a necessity.

Ordinary soaps should be avoided. The fat in them soon dries the skin, makes the hair brittle and ruin it under the frequent shampoos necessary to keep the hair beautiful.

Discriminating women everywhere use Mulsified because its pure, natural and oilless oils keep the scalp well moisturized and leaves the hair soft and easy to manage — preserves the natural wave and colour — makes it sparkle with new life, gloss and lustre.

Two or three tea-spoonsful gives an abundant lather which, creamy lather — cleanses thoroughly — completely removes dirt, dust and dandruff.

Don't envy the women with beautiful hair. Make them envy the envy of others by shampooing with . . .

"I Know This Act Shows Horrible And Grim" OTHELLO

HAVE you ever been brutally murdered? — Dramatically, I mean. Should you ever have to play such a part, would you want the audience to look at you with horror-stricken eyes and in dumb surprise, and the women scream with fear gripping their tender hearts when the curtain goes up revealing the grim aspect of a ghastly sight.

When the putty is correctly applied at the spots desired, take a little cold cream and apply it all over the face, covering the putty as well; use the cream sparingly. Superfluous cream well over the spot where you wish the wound to be made, raising up the centre and smoothing the edges well into the complexion. Repeat the operation at several spots on the face, as shown in the picture.

and soap out the eyebrows. Break off a piece of Nose-Putty one half to three quarters of an inch long. Knead this to a smooth even mass. A little cold cream on the fingers will prevent sticking; soapuds are also successfully used. However, much of either is apt to make the Putty too soft.

The face must be absolutely free of all cream or grease paint before applying the Putty.

When the putty is kneaded to the desired softness, spread it may be gently removed with tissue paper. Take No. 5 grease paint and use it for foundation. Apply it all over the face including the putty. If the colour of the foundation differs from that on the putty, blend in some colour until you get the same hue on the entire face.

When the foundation paint is evenly applied, take a paper stump or any similar instrument, and make a crease in the centre of the putty. See that the crease is not geometrically straight or it will suggest artificiality. Make such creases on all the spots where the putty has been applied. Then with a small, soft bristle brush, line all these creases with dark red colour (No. 9 Lining Colour). Highlight with No. 12 White, and blend the edges well together.

Now your face is ready for powdering. Use a lighter shade of powder than the foundation. After a couple of minutes, remove all the surplus powder by means of a face brush; take the powder well out of the creases; Should the red lines look faded, give them another touch of the No. 9 Lining colour.

Similar operation may be made on the hands to give a more realistic touch. The absence of two teeth adds to the horror suggested by this make-up. The trick is done by applying black tooth enamel to the teeth.

Montana Mountain Mix-Up.

At the Montana Annual Rodeo held this Saturday at Blaine, Mont., amazing scenes were witnessed in the bull-riding contest.

For you dumb hicks who have never seen bull-riding, Rodeo's greatest thrill, the idea is that cowboys endeavour to sit on the back of a steer for as long as they can, meanwhile the spectators hand over the old dough-re-mi to the assembled bookies. Mr. Steer dislikes this proceeding more than somewhat, with the result that the cowboy gets, literally, bumped off.

Elmer Cowdry, however, got mixed up in his directions, and carried the bull on his back four times round the ring. This was so unusual that the bookies had to reverse the procedure and hand over to the spectators. Elmer C. was unanimously voted rodeo champ, and all had a good time.

In an interview afterwards, Elmer intimated that it was a diet of Fresh Milk supplied by the Dairy Farm, Hong Kong, that had set him on the road to success.

WOMEN WILL ALWAYS BE SLAVES

"The Little God Of Marriage Looks Down And Laughs At Us," Says Mirabel Orr-Simpson

FROM the beginning of history a woman has been thought of as dependent and subordinate, and the bodies which make up the government, politically and socially, of every country all regarded them as such. In fact, it is not too extreme to say that on the whole their interests were considered very seldom at all, where they did not coincide with the interests of public peace and domestic concord.

Merely to read of the degree to which their subjection was carried in the days of the earliest records can hardly bring home to us to-day the penalties of being a woman.

It is true their duties then were few and simple, but their rights were practically none, unless certain reservations made on the score of their weakness, both mental and physical, can be called rights.

Until the days of the Christian Roman Emperors, woman had no place in the western world which could be compared even remotely to that which they have in the modern world to-day.

From being merely a chattel, a slave purchased in the open market, woman has gradually progressed. She has been gradually acknowledged to be the possessor of a brain in many respects even superior to that of the male and while man made laws have hedged her around with hard and fast rules as to her rights and duties she has slowly succeeded in surmounting and overriding prohibitions and disabilities.

Yet woman's lot in life is really not so very much changed from that of her primitive ancestors, in spite of our cry of equality and freedom.

The world goes on much the same after all, and the part of the woman remains unchanged.

It is still man's privilege to remain slightly elevated, slightly above—at any rate in his own mind if not in ours—and whatever our proud isolation from the shackles of Victorian chattle-dom, the little god of marriage still looks down and laughs.

Divorce, separation, free love—I had nearly said free beer—so prosaic and stripped of all romance has the process of freedom become to-day! And with the coming of this freedom has departed that slender bond of duty, which for all its frail nature has held the world together since life began. How many couples whose marriage ties are beginning to wear can fall back on that stalwart, unshrinking ally—noblesse oblige?

Something has departed from us with the coming of the modern world something which lent courage and endurance to thousands of women whose lot was drudgery, and enabled them to find a rainbow of happiness behind daily clouds.

Our grandmothers knew this quality, our mothers sensed it, but to the average woman to-day it is lost, a fragrance lingering in the air, one of those "old fashioned" things which nevertheless should be prized.

Nowhere so much as in Japan to-day is marriage regarded as a sacred duty, gravely undertaken and as gravely shared. The betrothal day consolidates a tie more revered, less easily broken in some cases than the actual tie of marriage itself. And that in Japan is inviolate.

Every Samurai girl-child knows from babyhood that some time as a matter of course she will marry—a far away necessity not to be considered until the time comes. She does not look forward to it, she does not dread it, for she does not think of it at all. But the betrothal day is the great moment in her life. The ceremony takes place early in the forenoon, in the waxing of the day rather than the waning, to symbolise the opening of the blossom of life.

All the near relatives of the bride are present. Summoned by a "rounding" letter, they arrive from far and near the older ones to hold the family council, the younger ones that they may be trained in the ceremonies proper to the occasion.

Besides these, the two go-betweens (the friends elected to arrange the preliminaries) take a place of honour near the "Tokonama" or household shrine.

The woman go-between carries to the little bride-to-be (for she is seldom more than thirteen years of age) a small white table on which is placed a square of crepe. On this rests the crest of the future husband's family—the crest which signifies irretrievably her change of loyalty and allegiance.

From the time she dons that crest the Japanese girl belongs wholly to her husband. Should he die it is to his family she must return—her own are cut off from her for ever and as a widow her status is negligible.

Should there be children of the marriage those children may be taken from her to live in such fashion as their father's family chooses. She has no say.

The crest, therefore, signifies much and is entitled to outward respect of the greatest magnitude. Should it include in its design, for instance, a spray of plum blossom, the little betrothed must never taste of plum jam or the fruit in any form, neither must she pull plum blossom from the bough except to decorate the household shrine on her husband's birthday.

It is possibly a pity that something of this element of respect, unswerving allegiance, is not encouraged to permeate the lives of Western girls. The proportionate number of divorces and separations, etc., would certainly drop, and there might creep back something of the sacredness of marriage which, though it might limit our freedom, should prove a shorter path to content.

Eastern Europe at any rate holds no brief for woman's independence. At the Cypriote Festival in Larnaca every woman is bound to take part in what is in effect a modern counterpart of the worship of Aphrodite. The entire unmarried community goes down to the sea in boats to bathe in the surf of the Mediterranean, during which time the most comely are chosen as wives, in token of which a piece of silver is given.

The unhappy remainder are hired as servants, or bought by dealers from the harems of Turkey. If they do not "give satisfaction" they may be returned. The hiring fees which are refunded are then sold off cheap at the next autumn sale!

This festival has its roots deep in that described by Herodotus in his "Clio," and goes back further to the worshippers of Babylon.

The "fairs" of Scotland also share this origin, but it is interesting to note that in the most domestic accomplishments who secure the favours.

So down the ages, to-day and yesterday, to-morrow and the day after, the marriage market lingers and although conditions and outlooks may change still a woman's lot remains.

It is in the hands of each generation to rear their girls to happiness, but it is hard to see how this may be until respect and duty march together and woman, prepared to acknowledge her responsibilities, ceases to deny her lot in life.

PEOPLE I'd Be HAPPY To Kill

Stephen Leacock Tells How A Gang Of Bridge-Playing Sit-Down Strikers Invaded His Home

THE sit-down strikers—who sat down the other night in my living room—had timed their arrival with characteristic cunning.

They came just after dark between eight and nine in the evening. All six arrived in one motor car so as to effect a quick and immediate entry before any one could stop them.

With proper warning I could easily have prevented entry.

My plant is a large country house with a lodge and a driveway and protected in the rear by a lake. A heavy chain stretched across the drive could have brought the car to a stop.

As it was nothing was done. No chain was placed and there was no tear gas in the house.

The result was that they were in, had slipped past the maid at the door, thrown off their wraps and had occupied the living room before any organised attempt could be made to eject them.

It was there that I was summoned for a conference. They appeared to be, as I said, six—two men and two women, evidently husbands and wives, and two younger criminals, a grown-up girl and boy, quite old enough to be held legally responsible.

Now here began the difficulty. People who only know of sit-down strikes from hearsay, as I am afraid is the case with even some of our judges, cannot estimate the practical difficulty of dealing with the strikers.

But any plant manager will understand my case. An outsider would ask why not throw them all out. Your plant, he would say, is your property. These sit-down people are just trespassers.

True. But you see I know them; they were people that I knew, just as the plant manager knows and has worked for years with the leaders of his strike.

Apart from their presence in my plant I had nothing against them. One of our judges asked the other day, "Why not throw them out by the neck?" Well those two senior women were in evening dress and were of the solid kind that has no neck.

They opened the discussion, cleverly enough, by drawing attention to the fine spring weather; I admitted that it was fine but claimed that it still turned bitter cold later at night.

They denied this flat out. Then I made my first, tentative, offer, viz.: that they must have a whisky and soda, or ginger ale with ice, a choice, before they left.

They agreed, but without clause.

For the time being I was beaten, but it occurred to me that in getting ice for the drinks I might make some use of the telephone to get them home.

The younger criminal frustrated this by coming to help me. While getting the ice he put in an ingenious claim that he had been a student of mine in Economics when I was a professor.

There was no way to challenge this. He may have been. A lot of my students went to the bad.

When I got back to the living room the sit-downers had settled in to their task and were well ensconced round the fire which they stirred to a blaze.

They came on boldly with their first demand and suggested a game of bridge.

I urged that I had no cards. But their preliminary organisation provided this. It seemed that one of the women strikers had cards in her bag.

By ten o'clock the sit-down strike was in full operation. The strikers were playing bridge, four at a time, with two as pickets to keep their eye on me. The system, I believe, is called "cutting-in" and is largely used in cases like this where a sit-down strike is carried on in a private dwelling.

Of bridge I know nothing, but it was clear that we had reached a rough and ready understanding, namely that they would play without further annoyance to the property provided that I kept up the fire and supplied whiskey and soda after each rubber.

For those not conversant with bridge I may say that a "rubber" is the name given to the period between drinks.

The sit-down strikers were thus getting about fifty cents an hour, which they raised to sixty cents an hour after eleven o'clock by working shorter rubbers.

I had to give in. One man made a distinct threat that if I didn't, they'd stay all night. What he said was, "I just feel as if I could play all night!" but I knew what he meant.

I repeat again that people who think only in terms of theory, fail to realise how difficult it is in practice to fight against sit-down strikers. They would say

"Why didn't you get one and use force, attack him, kill him?" I tried to. I got one of the men strikers, while he was picnicking, and took him down to the cellar under pretence of fixing the furnace, but he artfully kept out of reach of the shovel.

Then I took him out on the lawn to look at the lake, but I couldn't get him near enough.

So when we came in I made a flat out offer of seventy-five cents worth of whiskey, and a plate of sandwiches if they'd go—that's before they went.

But it only led to a lot of back and forward discussion. One woman said: "Oh yes, sandwiches would be lovely! Do let us stop a minute!" but the other said: "No, Mary, we don't need to stop, we can eat the sandwiches right here."

After that it was nearly one in the morning. I gave right in. I knew there was a cold chicken in the ice-box, the real thing, plump and cool and lying all dressed up with green parsley. Show that to a woman of the make and build that these were and you've got her.

I beat them with that. Within ten minutes I had them round the dinner-room table with the chicken. They had found half a cold ham and a few other things and claimed the lot.

We were acting on a fair and square "gentleman's agreement" that they'd eat all they could and then go. There was a little murmuring, indeed someone suggested a round of cold hands at poker or something, and one woman said that when she got going she could go on all night.

But there was a general feeling that my offer was a fair compromise and they took it.

They made one stipulation, however:

They are all coming back next Tuesday, and they are going to bring two others with them, visitors who are coming from Cincinnati.

They say that these are "lovely people." I don't doubt it. And they say that they are just dying to meet me.

All right. Let them die.

Next Tuesday I'll be ready. The chain will be across the drive. John Kelly, my lodge keeper, a determined man who had seen something of Sinn Fein Ireland, is a handy man with bird-shot. And I have ordered ten gallons of tear-gas.

And yet, oh, I don't know, somehow you just can't.

That's the bother with the sit-down strikes in social life.

They'll come and I'll let them in—and they'll say, "Well, here we are again!" and one of the women will get off that old thing about the bad penny, and then say, "I want you to meet Mr. and Mrs. Potzammer of Cincinnati," and I'll say, "What about a little Scotch?"

All right. Life is just repetition.

THE SNAKE

Every Man's Hand Is Against Him

INSIDE his membranous envelope the infant snake wriggled. Some of the sacs near him had already burst, and the dark cranny in the old stone wall was full of rustling sibilance. There was a smell of roots and rain, and a pervasive fetidness, like musk. It was an average litter—there were 20 of them. Because they were yester-jawes they had not matured slowly in leathery eggs, but had sprung from the cold body of their mother full-formed and wriggling, encased only in thin shrouds.

The snake flexed his body and the birth-casing collapsed. Slowly as a slug, he glided forward. Ahead was a glimmering of daylight. He reached it; his narrow head emerged from the stone wall an inch, two inches, then was motionless. He extended his pink forked tongue, delicate as a moth's antenna. That was how the snake came into the world in the spring.

In succeeding weeks he grew in size and in awareness of his universe. As he glided through the grass, the world presented itself as a soundless jungle, its periphery never more than a foot or two beyond his cold, questioning jaws, for his small, dark eyeballs—fixed forever in a lidless stare—were capable of only the tiniest movements, and where other creatures have ears, the snake had only unbroken skin. Thus to him the world was only a region of odours, and of pressures and temperatures felt against his flesh; of subtle vibrations detected by his extending tongue.

In the mornings, when the sun had taken the chill from the earth, the snake emerged from his crevice to lie on a warm stone and heat his sluggish blood. Warmed, he would explore the grass soundlessly, now and again raising his head above the forest of blades, his thin tongue flickering testingly. Since he had no brawn, not even the gentlest tread on the earth was too delicate and fleeting for his nervous flesh to detect.

If he met no adventure after an hour or two, the snake would crawl into a patch of shade and dispose his length in a loose loop, lying motionless as though dead. The object of his vigil might not appear for days. If it were a slow and blundering toad or earthworm, the snake raised his head slowly and stared at the victim for a minute or two. Some times, in this moment of contemplation, his head swayed gently from side to side, not to hypnotize, but only as a kind of involuntary preparation for the strike. Then the head would flash forward—quicker as the beat of a hummingbird's wing—and the keen teeth would fasten on the meat. Because the bones of his two jaws were separated, and the flesh of his head so rubbery-soft, he would easily eat a fat toad.

There was little ecstasy and little torment in the snake's life, but now and again came brief interruptions in the torpor of his days. Summer heat was an agony, for his blood had no independent temperature of its own, but was warmed and cooled at the dictate of the earth. His sole refuge from heat was in the damp crevices of the stone wall, from which he would venture forth only in the early dawn, for the full noon sun meant death.

Sometimes, too, the snake grew uncomprehendingly aware of a dull hungering inside him which frog blood did not fulfill—and he would glide in search of a female to lie in a cold, passionless embrace.

Another interregnum was heralded, in the snake's dim consciousness, by an itching and tightening all over his body. Finding it hard to breathe or move, and his eyesight curiously dimmed, the snake crawled to the rough stones of the wall to rub his scaly nose. His skin would split, fray and loosen. Then, as he glided gently forward, with his body pressed against the stone, his whole skin would peel off inside-out. His sight was clear now, and his striated body was again smooth and glistening.

Then came a morning when the snake glided to his sunny stones and felt them cool against his belly. The air against his extended tongue was cold. Heavy with sluggishness and feeling a numbness creep through his coiled length, he set forth through the grass. It was full of smells of mice and slug, but the snake sought a curious pungence, heavy and fetid, like musk.

Finding the scent which he instinctively sought, he followed its trail to a part of the stone wall where some winter's frost had left a fissure. The snake entered; the musky smell inside was heavy, and it was full of rustling. Discerning a loose mass, writhing and undulating, the snake crawled to it and inserted his own body among the other loops and coils. The dim urgencies in his body and brain waned and grew dim, and an opaque unawareness descended upon his being.

Winter had come.

Letter Perfect

Thomas Henry Huxley, biologist, to Matthew Arnold, essayist

26 Abbey Place

MY Dear Arnold:
Look at Bishop Wilson on the sin of covetousness and then inspect your umbrella stand. You will there see a beautiful brown smooth-handled umbrella which is not your property.

Think of what the excellent prelate would have advised and bring it with you next time you come to the club. The porter will take care of it for me.

Ever yours faithfully,

T.H. Huxley

Queen Victoria, when writing her daily letter to each of her nine children, used often to confine herself to the all-sufficing formula:

Dear Child:

I am fairly well, and I hope you are very well.

Loving Mu.

Lincoln to a Civil War mother:

Mrs. Bixby

Boston, Mass.

Dear Madam:

I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any word of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming, but I cannot refrain from tendering to you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the Republic that they died to save. I pray that the Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon that altar of freedom.

Yours very sincerely and respectfully,

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Letter to the District Officer, Aboakuta, India, from a native clerk he had sacked for sleeping on duty.

Mr. F. Symonds

District Officer, Aboakuta

Kind Sir:

On opening this epistle you will behold the work of a dejobbed person and a very bowfied and much chidrenized gentleman, who was very violently dejobbed in a twinkling by your good self. For Heaven's Sake, sir, consider this catastrophe as falling on your own head, and remind yourself on walking home at the moon's end to five savage wives and sixteen veracious children with your pocket filled with non-existent £. s. d. and a solitary sixpence, pity my horrible state.

When being dejobbed and proceeding with a heart and intestines filled with misery in this den of doom, myself did greedily contemplate culpable homicide, but him who protected Daniel (poet) safe through the lion's den will protect his servant in his home of evil.

As to the reason given by your self esquire for my dejobbing the incrimination was laziness. No Sir. It were impossible that my self who has pitched sixteen infant children into this vale of tears can have a lazy atom in his mortal frame, and a sudden departure of £11 has left me on the verge of destitution and despair.

I hope this vision of horror will enrich your dreams this night and the good Angel will meet and pulverize your heart of nether milestones so that you will awaken and with such alacrity as may be compatible with your personal safety will hasten to rejobbulate your servant.

So mote it be. Amen.

Yours desparifally, Akoko Subash
